(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright))

Berlin, March 9.
Both the share market and the fixed interest security markets were exceedingly buoyant in certain classes of investments and advancing substantially. FUNERAL OF DR. C. C. WU

Ceremony In
Canton

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, March 11.
The remains of Dr. C. C. Wu (Wu Chao 'Chu'), member of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang and member of the South-west Political Council, who died in Hong Kong on January 2, were sent back here this morning for burial at Yat Mong Kong near the graveyard of his distinguished father, Dr. Wu Ting Fang, veteran Chinese statesman.
Observes for the late Dr. C. C. Wu were held at noon to-day at Yat Mong Kong, opposite the famous Yellow Flower Hill, and among those who paid the last respects to the deceased diplomat were Messrs. Tang Shao Yi, Teng Tse Ju, Chow Lu, Lin Yun Kai, General Chen Tsai Tong, Miao Pei Nan, Yu Han Mou and others.
The funeral procession began from the West Bund eastwards and then proceeded to the cemetery via Wing Hon Road and Wai Oi Road. A naval brass band led the way, and a long line of motor cars brought up the rear. The procession was flanked by motor-cycle policemen and gendarmes, and the casket was preceded by a detachment of troops with arms reversed.

Born 49 years ago, Dr. Wu received his middle school education at Atlantic High School in Atlantic City when his father was Minister to the United States, and later entered the University of London where he took the LL.B. degree with honours. In 1927 he was Minister of Foreign Affairs in Nanking, and two years later he became Chinese Minister to Washington.
In 1931, Dr. Wu refused to apply for American permits for the exportation of arms and ammunition to China on the ground that those weapons would be used by General Chiang Kai Shek against the Cantonese. He returned to Canton in the latter part of the same year and joined the then National Government here. In 1932 Dr. Wu was again urged to take up the portfolio of foreign affairs at Nanking but he declined and planned to go to Hainan Island to develop the industries there.

SURPLUS SUGAR DISPOSAL

Statement Causes
Apprehension

London, Mar. 11.
At the sugar meeting the Chadbourne group were apprehensive of the statement that it will be necessary to dispose of a certain surplus arising out of production from the Philippines during 1933/5 on the world market.
It was pointed out that under contemplated American legislation the surplus might be considerably reduced by imports to the United States before the quota is fixed.
The Chadbourneites said that in the event of a general agreement they could reach an agreement for distribution among themselves of the market remaining available. The only exception will be the Netherlands.—Reuter.

HABICHT RUMOURS

Munich, March 9.
Inspector of the Austrian National-Socialist Party Habicht in Munich papers refuted all rumours to the effect that he had ever been a member of the Communist Party. He emphasizes that he is a member of the National-Socialist Party since 1926 and has at all times been the strongest enemy of communism.—Transocean Kuo Min.

JEWISH FILM IN GERMANY

Berlin, March 9.
The president of the Reichsfilmkammer prohibited further performances of the film "Katharina II." produced by German Jewish Emigrants, on account of demonstrations of the population outside the cinema. The film could be shown only under strong protection of police. The leading role is played by Elisabeth Bergner.—Transocean Kuo Min.

CAPITAL OF QUEEN OF SHEBA

Paris, March 9.
The legendary capital of the Queen of Sheba has been discovered by the French author, Andre Malraux—winner of the Prix Goncourt last year—and Flight Capt. Cornillon, who crossed the Arabian desert in an airplane.
In a telegram to the newspaper, "Le Transigeant," they claim to have found the long sought ruins of the romantic city in the northern edge of the desert Roba el Chali.
The discoverers state that twenty towers and temples are in good state of preservation and that they have taken photographs of them.—Transocean Kuo Min.

STATUS OF REICHSBANK

Berlin, March 9.
Seizing the opportunity offered by a general meeting of shareholders of the Reichsbank held on Friday, the Reichsbank President, Schacht, dealt frankly a number of questions about the further status of the Reichsbank and finances of the Reich. Schacht said that the Reichsbank was making cautious use of its powers to buy securities conferred by recent legislation and insisted first and foremost on liquidity. "Whoever considers the energy and persistence with which the Reichs Government is endeavouring to create new field for the absorption of productive labour readily understands that the Reichsbank has not greater class than to keep the money and capital market equal to demands made on them for financing fluctuating economic needs, and at the same time maintaining itself capable of manoeuvring wherever necessary. Foreign countries are beginning to understand Germany's circumstances better and realise that the disappearance of Germany from the world market as buyers must influence on the raw materials market. Germany's foreign indebtedness to which the poverty of gold and foreign currencies is due is more than half the direct result of the Versailles Treaty and can only be reduced by a revival of world trade."—Transocean Kuo Min.

GERMAN UNEMPLOYMENT

Berlin, March 9.
German unemployment figures have fallen to the lowest figure since 1931 according to official returns published on Friday revealing that the number of unemployed has decreased in February by roughly 400,000 to a total of 3,371,000 which is 341,000 below the lowest level recorded during the first year of Hitler's Government's successful campaign against unemployment. This not only the usual setback suffered during the winter months has been compensated for but an auspicious beginning has been made for this year's campaign which is expected to put an end to unemployment in Germany. The improvement is chiefly due to the encouragement of building enterprises and the general upward movement of German industries.—Transocean Kuo Min.

CONCENTRATION CAMPS

London, March 9.
The Press devotes considerable space to communications made by one of the leading officials of the Prussian State Secret Police, Dr. Diehl, to foreign Pressmen in Berlin, and in which it is stressed that the concentration camps in Germany would probably disappear within the next few years. The papers underline Diehl's statement that a total of 9,000 political offenders are at present interned in German concentration camps, a number which is in sharp contrast with figures circulated by the Foreign Press.—Transocean Kuo Min.

HAPSBURGS OPPOSED

Paris, March 9.
That the return of the Hapsburgs to Vienna may lead to serious international complications and even war is intimated by Czechoslovakia's foreign minister Benes who in an interview published by the Petit Parisien predicts that at the moment of the Hapsburg re-entrance to the Austrian capital the Czech, Yugoslavian, and Rumanian ministers in Vienna would be recalled. Benes added that the Little Entente would oppose the Hapsburg restoration at all costs and would rather put up with any other eventually than the return of the former Austro-Hungarian ruling house which in his opinion would signify the beginning of intrigue and secret negotiations aiming at the revision of the peace treaties. Czechoslovakia is determined to prevent this under all circumstances said Benes, whose utterances are generally interpreted to mean that the Entente would not even shrink from resorting to force.—Transocean Kuo Min.

DUTCH COMMANDER SENTENCED

The Hague, March 9.

HITLER'S BOOK

Berlin, March 9.
The German publishers of Hitler's book "Mein Kampf" Franz Eher Press, issued on Friday night a statement regarding the recently pirated French edition of the much discussed biography of the leader of new Germany. The publishing house declares that the illegal Parisian edition of the book has been accorded approval neither by it or by the author, and that despite the French authorities assisting in every way in furthering the claims of justice against the pirates, a thorough investigation so far has failed to bring the guilty publishing concern to light. The Eher Press contradicts claims set forth in the foreword of the unauthorized edition that the translation is literally exact, and contend that the falsifications actually begin on the second page. The publishing house announces that the steps have already been begun to secure violated rights since they are being accorded the full co-operation of recognition of the French authorities.—Transocean Kuo Min.

STANDARD LEASES

Householders
Pleased

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4:30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10.
Householders in Germany were pleased to receive the news this morning that the Reichs Minister of Justice has decreed that all existing leases will be replaced by one standard form of contract, sweeping away once and for all the many unreasonable conditions which landlords have been accustomed to impose at a time, when owing to the scarcity of dwelling houses, tenants have been forced to agree to anything the landlord cared to exact. For instance, a formidable printed document was placed by the landlord before the tenant which usually contained a clause making the tenant responsible for every form of damage which a house or flat might suffer, even if burnt to the ground by being struck by lightning. From now onwards the tenant can only be made responsible for damage that arises from his own neglect.—Transocean Kuo Min.

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4:30 a.m.)

Bremen, March 10.
Arrangements have just been completed whereby passengers' comfort on trans-Atlantic travel will be considerably enhanced. The North German Lloyd announced that as from April 14 their fast liners "Bremen" and "Europa" will go right up to the wharf at Chebourg instead of lying in mid-stream as before. At the same time the French train service will be carrying passengers to the steamers' side. By this it means that embarkation will be more agreeable both in Bremen and Southampton.—Transocean Kuo Min.

LA SALLE COLLEGE

Annual Athletic
Meeting

J. Alves won the Victor Ludorum at the third annual athletic meeting of La Salle College, Kowloon on Saturday. Over 180 competitors took part in the thirty odd events, and some good finishes were seen as some of the athletes were prominent in local sports.

Some good times were established in the flat racing and the students gave a good indication of the challenge which they will offer in the forthcoming Inter-School Sports in April.
C. Rozario won the junior Championship and Jerry Gosano the Midgitt honour.
The Right Rev. Bishop Valortia presented the prizes, and in asking him to do so, the Brother Director, Brother Almar, said that His Lordship not only took a spiritual interest in the children but also in their physical welfare.
He was glad to note that the students had made full use of the facilities which the School offered in its extensive playgrounds and congratulated the successful competitors, and offered sincere thanks to all those who had contributed towards the awards.

COMPANY, LIMITED.

Re CALL.

THE Company recently made a call of $3.75 per share in respect of the partly paid shares in the capital of the Company which was payable by the registered holders on or before the 15th December, 1933.

Some of such registered shareholders have not paid the call and the Company has notified those of such registered holders who are also the registered holders of fully paid shares that, unless payment of such call together with interest thereon is paid to the Company on or before the 26th day of MARCH, 1934, the Directors will, in addition to their other remedies, take steps to obtain payment by selling such fully paid shares in accordance with the powers conferred on the Company by its Articles.

It is realised that in some cases both partly paid and fully paid shares standing on the register in the name of the same shareholder have both been sold to the same person but that such person has taken no steps to have his name put on the register.

While the Company can only deal with such shares in accordance with the share register it considers it advisable, though under no legal obligation to do so, to warn unregistered purchasers of such partly paid and fully paid shares of the intention of the Company in the event of any call not being paid on or before the 26th day of MARCH, 1934, to enforce its power of sale as regards such fully paid shares.

SURPLUS IN THE BUDGET

Disposal Not Yet Decided

London, March 10. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, has not yet decided how to dispose of the expected Budget surplus.

This was made clear in his speech at Birmingham, last night, when he warned that there was no wisdom in coming to a final conclusion until it is certain that a surplus existed, and if so, the extent of its size.

He said that the distribution of "some part of such a hypothetical surplus" was a weighty problem into which many considerations entered.

He had, at present, not come to any conclusions.

Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to refer to the movement headed by the Archbishop of York for ensuring that the restoration of the cuts in unemployment relief would be given first consideration.

There was nobody who did not share the Archbishop's sympathy with the unemployed, he said, but when he read the letter which the Archbishop wrote to the press, urging those who agreed with him to write to their members of Parliament, he thought it a pity that the Archbishop should seem to imply that the members required a reminder for their humanitarian feelings.

"I regret also that he should have suggested that members are largely to be guided by the number of letters they receive rather than by their own judgment," Mr. Chamberlain added.—Reuter.

SALARY CUTS AND TAX REDUCTION

London, March 10. The prospect of a substantial surplus being realised at the end of the financial year which closes on March 31 has given rise to much conjecture regarding the proposals of the Budget which will be opened in the House of Commons next month. The restoration of cuts made in unemployment benefit and salaries of civil servants and reduction in taxation imposed to meet the 1931 crisis are principal objects to which it is suggested the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain should devote attention.

In a speech last night at Birmingham, Mr. Chamberlain referred to the subject, remarking that an upright occupant of his office must give careful consideration to the various objects which might present themselves for distribution of some part of such hypothetical surplus in a way best fitted to advance the interests of the country, with due regard to conducting claims and to relief to the various classes in the community. The problem, he said, was a weighty and complicated one into which many considerations, some of which were not yet known to him, entered, and he had not up to the present come to any conclusions.—British Wireless.

DEPORTATION OF ALIEN SEAMEN

U.S. Respects Empire Opposition

Washington, Mar. 10. Owing to the protests of Canada, Great Britain and other European countries, the American State Department is opposing a private member's Bill now before Congress, dealing with the deportation of alien seamen.

The Department fear that the passing of the Bill will encourage retaliation against American shipping in foreign countries.—Reuter.

RUBBER RESTRICTION STATEMENT

Reports Sternly Denied

Amsterdam, Mar. 10. It is suggested in interested circles that an official statement in regard to rubber restriction is likely to be issued very shortly, simultaneously at the Hague and in London.

Enquiries made by "Reuter" in London, have so far not confirmed the suggestion.—Reuter.

London, Mar. 10. The Colonial Office categorically deny the widely circulated reports of the possible issue of a rubber restriction statement during the week-end.—Reuter.

PARIS RIOTS ECHO

Explanation By Daladier

Paris, March 10. The idea of a "Red plot" which was the press interpretation of the statements made by the former Prefect in Paris, M. Chlappe, on Thursday, when giving evidence before the Paris Inquiry Commission investigating the February riots, was scouted by M. Daladier, when giving evidence before the Commission yesterday.

He declared that there was never any question of a plot by M. Prot, M. Chlappe, M. Daladier stated, mentioned to him that M. Prot, who was Minister for Interior in the Daladier Cabinet, intended to form a Government himself, but that was a legitimate ambition.

Dealing with the circumstances of M. Chlappe's removal from the Prefecture of Police, M. Daladier said that after a study of the Stavisky dealer he found nothing to smirch M. Chlappe's personal probity, but found a lack of activity which would have permitted the arrest of Stavisky in 1931, or anyhow, in 1933, and he concluded that new blood was necessary.

M. Daladier was subsequently dramatically confronted by M. Chlappe, who maintained that he told M. Daladier that M. Prot was building up a personal party and that M. Daladier replied that he had not unlimited confidence in M. Prot and knew already what M. Chlappe had told him.

M. Daladier retorted that he had never heard M. Chlappe speak of M. Prot's activities exceeding his political and Parliamentary sphere.

He had the impression that M. Prot was preparing a Ministerial team, not a team of men determined to bring off a coup by force.

M. Chlappe maintained that a wealthy Cabinet member had been approached to provide funds to arm the "Red" forces.

M. Daladier replied that he did not remember M. Chlappe mentioning it.—Reuter.

ARMY PILOTS OF MAIL CARRIERS

Twelve Fatalities In One Month

New York, Mar. 10. The death toll among Army mail-carrying planes crashed since they took over the duties, a month ago.

The latest tragedy, involving the loss of two lives, occurred at Cheyenne, Wyoming, yesterday, when a plane crashed and burst into flames.

Only a few hours earlier an Army mail-carrying plane crashed on a beach at Daytona Beach, at Chardon, Ohio, while another Florida. In both mishaps the pilots were killed.—Reuter.

HELPING VICTIMS OF HILLERISM

Lord Marley's Experience In New York

London, Mar. 11. "Hitler's agents in New York twice threatened to plug me if I addressed meetings," declared Lord Marley, on his return to London yesterday, from his 8,000-mile tour in the United States, where he addressed 80 meetings, chiefly on behalf of the victims of Hitlerism in Germany.

He also collected U.S. $250,000 for the settlement of refugees in the Jewish Republic which is being established at Birobidjan, Russia.—Reuter.

LOCAL HOCKEY

H.K. Ladies Win Easily

Wrong tactics by the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' defence and the inability of their inside forwards to make headway, were the main factors which decided the game in favour of the Hongkong Ladies in their Caer Clark hockey encounter at Sookmupoo on Saturday, when the champions, emerged winners by five clear goals after an evenly contested first half.

The Hongkong Ladies played a better game at forward, where they adopted the short passing game, attacking in formation.

With the exception of Mrs. Read and O. Brown, the centre forward and left wing, respectively, of the "Y" Ladies, the rest of the forwards were weak and never in the picture at all.

J. Wilson, partnering A. Fowler in defence lay much too near the half-way line, and instead of covering, A. Fowler was in a line with her, with the result that when a ball was sent past the latter, the H.K. Ladies had only to contend with J. Weller in the "Y" goal.

The first half produced the best play, the H.K. Ladies getting very near to scoring on several occasions, but the brilliant display of A. Fowler in defence, coupled with E. Thompson's display at centre half kept out the invaders until 10 minutes from the interval, when the champions opened the scoring through J. Churchill.

Soon after Mrs. March scored the second goal.

In the second half the "Y" Ladies improved slightly at forward, although the defence showed signs of tiring. J. Dalziel, adding the H.K. Ladies' third soon after the resumption.

Ten minutes from time the H.K. Ladies swept through the "Y" defence to net two more goals from R. King and J. Dalziel.

The following were the teams:—H.K. Ladies:—M. Bird; E. M. Gray, B. Heibling, M. Wallace, B. Pope, M. K. Lowe, F. Marsh (1), J. Dalziel (2), E. Bonnar, J. Churchill (1), and R. King (1).

"Y" Ladies:—J. Weller, J. Wilson, A. Fowler; B. Blumenthal, E. Thompson, M. Gardiner; V. Bradbury, R. Blackmore, M. Read, T. Dennis and O. Brown.

RADIO BEAT NAVY

LOWER DECK

Awat Singh, the Radio Sports Club's brilliant hockey centre, forward performed the "hat-trick" against the Navy lower deck who were defeated by three clear goals by the Radio at Caroline Hill on Saturday.

The game was by no means one-sided, Johnson, McKenna and Hetherington being outstanding for the Navy, while P. Singh, J. Singh and G. Singh were prominent for the winners.

ST. ANDREW'S LADIES WIN

Fielding a much weakened team, the St. Andrew's Ladies were fully extended before they could repeat their previous Caer Clark cup victory over the Club de Recrelo "A" Ladies, at King's Park on Saturday by 2 goals to 1. They were a goal in arrears at the interval.

The Recrelo Ladies put up a very fine display in the opening half, when they took the lead through A. Alves who netted, an excellent goal. The Recrelo Ladies should have gone further ahead on several occasions, but over-eagerness robbed them of any further score.

In the second half the St. Andrew's Ladies found their true form, and gradually forced play from their half, P. Gittens equalising with a snap goal.

Soon after the St. Andrew's Ladies took the lead for the first time through M. Woolley, who converted in "characteristic" manner. From this point the Recrelo were penned in their own half.

The Saints without the services of J. Wong at centre half, I. Woolley deputising, while A. Chubb filled the right half position vacated by the former.

The following were the teams:—Recrelo "A":—B. D'Almada; M. Basto, C. Osmund; M. Remedios; M. Alves; L. Silva-Netto; L. Xavier, A. Alves; C. Silva, M. Roza and B. Remedios.

St. Andrew's:—Mrs. R. Rose; E. Landolt; G. White; M. Churn; I. Woolley, A. Chubb; F. Wong, I. Rogers, M. Woolley, I. Gittens and P. Gittens.

St. Joseph's In Strong Position

The struggle for the Senior championship still continues and by Saturday's results it appears to be very open. St. Joseph's P. C. strengthened their position, by a two goals to one over the South Wales Borderers. The Lincoln's defeat by Kowloon on the Railway ground brings St. Joseph's to within one point of the leaders. There are several important matches remaining to be played and there may be several more upsets.

A very important match in on the cards for Sunday next when South China receive the Borderers at Caroline Hill.

Hongkong Club took full points from the Gunners by the odd goal in three and Recrelo and Police played a goalless drawn match at King's Park, while South China defeated the Young Indians in the reply at Caroline Hill in Division II.

The R.E. defeated the Borderers at Sookmupoo by four goals to one in Division III.

"TWILIGHT IN THE FORBIDDEN CITY"

Startling Disclosures In Sir Reginald Johnson's Book

London, March 10. That the Manchurian independence movement culminating in Mr. Henry Pu Yi's enthronement is in no wise due to Japan intervention but purely a Chinese and Manchurian act dating at least to 1923 when Tsang Tsao Lin tried to reinstate the Emperor in Manchuria is startlingly demonstrated by Sir Reginald Johnson's "Twilight in the Forbidden City," dealing with his five years as Mr. Pu Yi's tutor. The book will be published on Monday.

Sir Reginald had also learned from Tsang Tsao Lin himself that the Manchus could have refused to abdicate in 1912 and merely transferred the throne to Manchuria.

The book throws important light on the characters of the Emperor Dowager, Kuang Hsu, Pu Yi, Yuan Shih Kai, and on many dramatic events, and secret intrigues in the Forbidden City of which the author's unique position has made him a personal witness. —Reuter.

DISARMAMENT MEMORANDUM

France Considering Reply

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Paris, March 11. A semi-official announcement just made states that the French note on the British Disarmament memorandum is not expected for several days. Neither on Monday nor Tuesday will the Cabinet consider the question.

In the coming week the Supreme Council will hold a plenary session when the technical aspect of the question will be considered.

The "Paris Sol" admits that this meeting will be convened before Wednesday. This is, however, contradicted by a semi-official statement which interprets certain utterances by M. Barthou to mean that the Defence Council would not meet for at least a fortnight. —Transocean Kuo Min.

SECURITY OF FRANCE

Reorganisation Of Defences

Paris, March 10. France is to launch a re-organisation and re-equipment programme for the defence forces, at a cost of £27,000,000 for which a special expenditure account will be tabled by the Government.

The Minister of War is authorised to spend over £14,000,000 for the completion of frontier defences in 1934 and 1935, while the Minister of Marine will devote 1,560,000,000 francs to the construction of liquid fuel depots and coastal defences.

The Air Ministry will be allotted 11,625,000 francs for the equipment of the air force, on the principle of quality rather than quantity, and a first line air fleet, ready for action at any moment, will be built. —Reuter.

JUDGE PRINCE'S ASSAILANT

Identity Still A Riddle

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Paris, March 10. The riddle of the identity of Judge Prince's murderer, and the exact connection of foul play with the Stavisky case is cleared up, according to the newspaper "Liberte," by a telegram received by the prosecutor-general from the State-Attorney at Dijon—the place of the murder. Since the sensational telegram, however, according to "Liberte" reports was received in code and the statement to the Press from the Prosecutor General has not yet been received, the riddle would seem to have suffered merely a change of venue. —Transocean Kuo Min.

PURCHASE OF TIMOR

Britain As Buyer

London, March 11. According to the "Sunday Dispatch," Britain is considering buying for between five to ten million sterling Timor Island, the last half in the air route to Australia.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

French and Belgian Ministers

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, March 11. M. Barthou, the Foreign Minister, received the Belgian Ambassador on Saturday morning, considering the recent interviews by the Belgian Premier before the Belgian Senate, this meeting between Barthou and the Ambassador is considered to be of great importance.

In political circles in Paris, it is admitted openly that the remarks made by Court de Spelueville, the Belgian Premier, created an embarrassing impression and opened the way for "tendacious comment." Happily, it is said, it was subsequently officially denied from Brussels that the Belgian Premier had made his startling utterances, after having consulted both London and Paris.

The visit of the Belgian Ambassador to M. Barthou is considered to have contributed greatly towards the disarmament problem. —Transocean Kuo Min.

BUILDINGS IN LONDON

Increasing Height Criticised

London, March 9. The tendency to erect higher buildings in London is the subject of criticism in the report of the Royal Fine Art Commission which by Royal Warrant of last year was empowered to call attention to any project or development which in the opinion of the Commission might appear to affect the amenities of a national or public character.

The Commission now state that the effect of some of these tall buildings upon other places of national and historic interest has in many cases been detrimental. In particular it refers to the buildings recently erected in the neighbourhood of St. Paul's Cathedral, distant views of which have been blocked by newly erected structures. The maximum height of buildings in London has recently been increased to 100 feet. The Commission points out that the increase in height is a concession of which money value is often great and it is suggested that any such concession should be accompanied by some advantage to the public of light, of air, or of amenity by surrendering the frontage for road widening or by setting back the faces of buildings in order to provide a wide angle of light. —British Wireless.

TREASURY BILLS

London, March 9. The total amount applied for in Treasury bills to-day was £68,675,000. The amount allotted for bills at three months was £38,875,000. Average rate per cent. 18/0.77d as compared with 18/4.75d last week. —British Wireless.

L.C.C. ELECTIONS

Labour Party's Majority

The final results of the London County Council elections were declared to-day. The Labour Party has secured a majority of 14 over the Municipal Reformers which is the only other party represented on the new Council. This is the first time Labour have been in majority in the County Council. The final figures are Labour 89, Municipal Reformers 55. Labour gains numbers 35 and losses one. Municipal Reformers gained one seat and lost 29. Liberals lost six seats, 32.8 per cent of the electorate was voted. At the 1931 election, 27.8 per cent was polled.

The Leader of the Labour Party in London, Mr. Herbert Morrison in a statement to the press said the real changes of policy would inevitably take place, and he was anxious that the direction of the Council's policy should be clear cut. He was confident the integrity of its administration would be fully safeguarded under Labour control, and that the Council would be animated by the highest spirit of public responsibility and public service. He indicated that a large scale programme of housing and slum clearance would engage the earliest attention of the Council. —British Wireless.

MOSLEY'S POLICE

NAZIS SENT TO PRISON

Kidnapped A Wealthy Jew

Berlin, Mar. 11. Seven Nazi Stormtroopers were sentenced to terms of three to six years' penal servitude on a charge of kidnapping a wealthy Jew manufacturer at Chemnitz and attempting to extort ransom.

The victim, Otto Schlesinger, was held up while motoring at Chemnitz. He was forced at the point of a revolver to enter a Nazi car and driven towards Berlin.

Schlesinger was allowed to send a telegram to his wife saying he was summoned to Berlin on urgent business, and he astutely signed the telegram with his surname. His wife concluded that something was wrong and telephoned to friends in Berlin who informed the police.

Schlesinger telephoned to a friend to stand with ransom of several thousand marks outside the Zoo Station. Nazis drove up with Schlesinger, released the envelope, released him and drove off pursued by a police car. They were captured after an exchange of shots with the police. —Reuter.

DISARMAMENT

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10. Criticising the French reply to the Allied Note on Disarmament the German Press puts forth the following arguments.

They complain that by the French contention it means that the National-Socialists storm detachments should be reckoned when determining the strength of the German Army. A semi-official organ points out that in this connection that France on her part is opposed to having her five million trained reserves included when determining her own military strength, although the French military experts have stressed time and again that these reserves constituted part of the French Army. Germany, moreover, has nothing to compare with the French reserves, the German soldiers of the World War being now at least 35 years of age and having never since been given military training. In France, however, every man fit for service has undergone military training, is called back to the service at regular intervals and full equipment is held ready for him in case of mobilisation. It is therefore only fair to ask for the five million reserves of the French army to be taken into account before an attempt is made to determine the value of the untrained and unarmed political soldiers of Germany. —Transocean Kuo Min.

FRANCE ON CONTROLLED REDUCTIONS

London, Mar. 9. The results of parallel and supplementary efforts of various states to advance the work of the Disarmament Conference in accordance with the recommendation of the Bureau on November 22 have been communicated to Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Chairman of Conference, and all material documents including British and Italian memoranda and a series of memoranda exchanged between France and Germany are published by the League of Nations.

In a covering letter of the communicating documents that have passed between France and Germany, M. Barthou, the French Foreign Minister states "the French Government's view that a controlled reduction of armaments must take place down to the level which will enable an equality of rights to be realised in a system of security for all nations, and that effective guarantees of execution are indispensable."

It adds the following observations:—

1. That "Existence of formations which in spite of certain details are incontestably of military character" must be taken into account in any calculation of effectiveness.

2. The French Government could not accept an immediate reduction of its armaments which would be accompanied by an immediate rearmament of qualitative character of powers bound by military clauses of treaties.

3. The question of guarantees of execution in case the provisions of the convention are violated is of especial importance.

4. The present circumstances and more particularly increasing pace at which certain countries are continuing to rearm, in contravention of provisions of treaties, necessitate the rapid situation of the problem with competition. —British Wireless.

HOUSEWIVES' SCHEME

For Unemployment Problem

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10. An ingenious solution for the serious problem connected with the national fight against unemployment was announced by the Berlin Housewives' Association. Owing to stringent economies imposed on all housewives during the world economic crisis they have been compelled to dispose of the services of servant girls, who being unfitted for other work have swelled the ranks of the unemployed. The Housewives' Association which numbers 100,000 members is making a special appeal to all concerns to assist in re-employing the servant girls and has laid down certain conditions. The girl must be provided with free accommodation, food and washing, and pocket money but is to receive no wages. A contract is being drawn up to safeguard the position of the servant girl. At the end of a year the girl would be examined to see how the system works and if their services are found satisfactory they will receive a certificate which implies preferential treatment towards a salaried job. It is contended this will also help the seriously overworked housewife. —Transocean Kuo Min.

ALFONSO WINS LAWSUIT

Recovery Of Securities

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

London, March 10. Ex-King Alfonso of Spain has just won a lawsuit against a London Bank to obtain some outstanding securities held by the bank valued at £11,000. The judgment ruled that securities must now be handed over to the ex-King in his private name. This decision is interesting and important not so much on account of the money involved but as a precedent given to a fundamental principle. Before the outbreak of the Spanish revolution the ex-King's Spanish bank made the transference of securities to the London bank. The London agents refused to hand over the securities after the revolution because they declared themselves responsible to the Spanish bank which itself was responsible to the Spanish Government who had declared all Royal property to be confiscated. —Transocean Kuo Min.

BERLIN SHARE MARKET

Prices Firm

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 8, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10. Although profit taking was noticeable, prices on the Sharemarket continued firm, a number of rises being reported. This buoyant condition of the market is due to the successful renewal of the standard agreement for short term credits with States and Municipalities, and the news that the Steeltrust have again engaged 1,000 more hands, making a total increase of 5,000 since last October.

The fixed interest security market was somewhat neglected, the turnover being small with prices remaining firm. Call Money 4 3/8 and 5 3/8. Throughout the whole week the Berlin Bourse was exceptionally buoyant, both on the sharemarket and fixed interest securities market. Among the chief causes for the above was the success of the Leipzig Fair which surpassed all expectations both as regards display of merchandise, samples and engineering, and the stimulation given by the Berlin Motor Show. —Transocean Kuo Min.

GERMANY'S TRADE

Plea By Herr Schmidt

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Hamburg, March 10. A forcible plea for the expansion of Germany's overseas trade was made by the Reich Minister for Economy Herr Schmidt at the annual banquet of the German East Asiatic Society here on Saturday. Schmidt pointed out that the economic crisis in other countries could not compare with the distress in Germany as no other country was confronted with such materially and morally devastating proportions of unemployment as Germany. Only on this scale can the measures be judged which the National-Socialist Party have taken in order to bring about a Reich's economic rehabilitation. The recent favourable development in the internal economic situation necessitates an increased import of raw materials. Our foreign suppliers must welcome these increased requirements at a moment like the present but this can only be maintained if they purchase our goods. It is the great task of our export trade to explain these conditions to the outside world, stressing the point that Germany cannot pay her debts so long as foreign countries do not import German goods. In the Far East, so the Reich Minister continued, problems of political and economic nature were on the brink of a solution. The general political situation in many ways is not free from tension. But so far as we can see to-day the relation between those two States—both friendly to us—China and Japan seemed to be steering into calmer channels so that a gradual arrival at the satisfactory adjustment can be hoped for in questions still pending. We hope in the coming peaceful years it will be possible for German merchants and engineers to continue their energies in all parts of the Far East, and place themselves at the disposal of the accomplishments of the great new tasks that lie in the future. —Transocean Kuo Min.

U.S. PURCHASE OF SILVER

Instructions To Treasury

Washington, March 10. The House Cointer Committee has approved Bills authorising the Treasury to pay 25 per cent. above the market price for silver shipped to the United States in payment of exported agricultural commodities and purchase 1,500,000,000 ounces of silver at the market price. The purchase would be 150,000,000 ounces within the first four months after the passage of the Bill and an additional 250,000,000 ounces within one year, the purchases to cease if commodity prices reach the 1928 average. —Reuter.

DICTATORSHIP OR DEMOCRACY

At the present time it is becoming the fashion for superior persons and politicians to sneer at democracy. "As for Democracy," said Alcibiades towards the end of the Peloponnesian War, "why should we discuss acknowledged madness." The young Alcibiades of our age gibe at democracy as a form of government in similar terms. Only the other day one of the leading monthly journals in London threw out a few hints to the effect that "there is no folly more fashionable than the saying that the British will never tolerate a dictatorship." Under constitutional forms of a very flimsy character the English have invariably insisted on being governed either by a close oligarchy or a vital dictatorship. Unless Parliament under universal franchise can fulfil the indispensable task of leadership, a dictatorship is not only inevitable but necessary. Then in France and in the United States, also the very citadel of democracy, there have been a good deal of grumbling in the strain that democratic governments are not democratic enough. It is commonly assumed that in every social and political change that occurs in any country the natural policy is not considered as workable unless it is patterned after dictatorship. In certain quarters it is asserted "that Mr. Roosevelt's 'New Deal' is nothing other than the first stage of an American movement toward dictatorship."

In face of the whole world being in such a state of hysteria, brought about obviously by the harassing uncertainty of the depression, it is perhaps worth while to pause for a moment to consider this serious disillusionment about democracy.

Before the War, the prevailing opinion was that democracy could almost be regarded as the only possible government for a modern civilised country. But to-day the estimation of democracy has dropped to the lowest depth. If anything, democracy to-day is looked upon as adjusting itself clumsily and inadequately to new conditions of the time. And the democratic form of Government is thus imperilled because the nervous strain of the World War has given rise to some strange attempts to suppress or reform some of the most fundamental attitudes of mankind. On the one hand Russia is trying to destroy the classical "economic man" and on the other several other European countries want to cripple the "political animal" of Aristotle.

These repeated attempts to deprive the voting majority of the political-economic rights have decidedly resulted from the abnormal and pathological phase of wartime, when Europe witnessed the summary way in which the political, economic and social organisations were brought under the control of one man. Subsequently, the post-war conditions found the younger generation of leaders so impatient of the methods of reconstructing the shattered world in the hands of the hoary-headed statesmen that they lost no time to create in the mass the same habit of discipline and regimentation as resorted to during the War. These young leaders being products of the War, have without a doubt learned one lesson well, namely the art of mastering and regimenting crowds. Politically this is an entirely new type of tyranny which for the first time in history exploits the mob spirit in an era of universal suffrage and gives to the supreme leaders powers as limitless as that of the modern state.

One has no quarrel with any people who wish to pin faith to such political form, but the doctrine thus imposed by coercion rather than persuasion hardly suits

RELEASE OF KOREAN

Hunger Striker In Gaol

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, March 11.—Having gained his freedom by hunger strike, Poh Yi Yat, the Korean who was detained at the French Municipal Gaol in Shamen at the instance of the Japanese Consul General, Mr. S. Kawagoye, to-day moved away from his house at Fook Yam Chuen to another secluded place where his freedom is not likely to be endangered again by unlawful arrest.

Mr. Poh's release was announced in a brief communique issued by the Canton Municipal Government which stated that the French Consular authorities set free the Korean and escorted him to the foot of East Bridge where he stepped on Chinese soil, and that the City Government was duly informed of his discharge.

The Korean claims that he is a naturalized Chinese citizen, having taken his naturalization papers from Kiangsu District Court at Shanghai. This view was espoused by the Canton City Government who demanded both the French and Japanese consular authorities the immediate release of the prisoner. Poh was taken against his will to the Japanese Consulate General on October 13 last year, but since the Consulate is located at the French Concession he had to be handed over to the French Police.

Consul General Kawagoye insisted that Poh is still a Korean and should be tried by the Japanese court for his alleged Communist and other activities in Canton. On the other hand, Mayor Liu Chi Wen contended that Poh's removal from his home in Tung-shan to Shamen was illegal from the beginning.

While in the French gaol, Poh went on hunger strike and was at one time in a critical condition. Monsieur M. H. Bonafous, French Consul General, ordered the release of the prisoner on the ground that only the French have police power in the French Concession and that the "arrest" of Poh by the Japanese is untenable.

the temperament of democratic countries like Great Britain, the United States and France. Not that these countries think that their democracies are all perfect. On the contrary, the existing democratic governments of these countries may show many defects and the people may have found in them a great deal to grumble at. Nevertheless democratic Great Britain, America and France may not succumb so easily to dictatorship and throw into the scrap heap, overnight, their heritage.

When all is said and done the business of politics is to uphold a certain standard and manner of life by coupling liberty with discipline. The function of a Government, in order words, may be likened to the aim of traffic control and regulation. It is not to tell the people where they are to go, but the primary object is to enable individuals to go more efficiently and freely where they want to go.

Some of the modern states under dictatorship compel politics to achieve unity and solidarity, which in a real democratic society is done by voluntary cultural associations. Unity and solidarity as obtained within a state under dictatorship is best an irrational nationalism. The adjustment and regulation of a government under dictatorship amounts to using the state's force from one man's viewpoint, but remember that only the weaker knows where the shoe pinches.

If Gossip We Must

By "Prudence"

The annual horticultural show last Wednesday proved a great attraction. This year it aroused more interest than ever. If one may judge by the number of cars parked in the vicinity they reached right round the C.S.O. to the entrance of Volunteer Headquarters!

The unseasonable weather had caused anxiety to local gardeners, but why worry... since it is well-known that Chinese Fah-wongs can triumph over almost every difficulty. Despite the "handicap" of drought followed by sudden rain and cold, there were some gorgeous plants on view.

Very interesting were the small pear and apple trees sent in by Mr. Bagran, and his rhododendrons were another novelty. Lady Peel showed some exquisite blooms. That dark-damask rose of hers seemed to hold the breath of England in its petals, and the pansies were enchanting. She herself took a great interest in the exhibits and went round the stands mids thoroughly. Her enthusiasm for gardening has been a great incentive to all the flower-lovers in the Colony.

DAHLIAS.
Another specially beautiful exhibit was the stand of dahlias sent by Lady Southorn. Their marvellous colours and the perfection of every bloom gained an easy first prize.

Mrs. Wellington's "Ikebana" was quite unique in its way. It seems a pity that so few people understand this fascinating art of Japanese flower-arrangement.

Pots of violets from Kowloon were lovely too... but only what one expects from the U.S.R.C. which has the reputation for having the best kept garden on the Mainland.

The mignonette of Mrs. Ho-Kom-tong made me feel quite homesick. Nothing brings the charm of an English garden so vividly before one as the unexpected scent of that sweet old-fashioned plant.

PICTURE HATS.
I was so lost in flower-gazing that I missed a good many pretty frocks... but certainly confirmed my opinion that picture-hats have come to stay. I loved the graceful clinging costume worn by Lady Peel and thought the black hat which completed it, a charming example of this new fashion.

Mrs. G. D. R. Black looked extremely smart in "magnolia" with a white flower in her buttonhole. Mrs. Prior looked charming in dark red and Mrs. Franklin wore a red hat with her gray-blue suit.

Mrs. George Tinson also had a note of red with her check costume, and had reason to feel proud of her pots of nemesia. Mrs. Mariel Hall was examining the hellebore with much interest and blended with it marvellously as she was all in pale gray with a narrow border of gray fur at the neck. Mrs. Harry Owen Hughes had a very captivating coal-trock with huge buttons and a green and brown collar. Mrs. Way was delightful in cinnamon-brown. Her little daughter Elizabeth was with her... such a lovely child with her blue eyes, flaxen hair and delicate complexion.

CHILDREN AND FLOWERS.

It is very nice to see the interest that children take in the flower-show. Pretty Joan Newhouse was happily admiring the ivory and coral effect of her mother's prize exhibit of turnips and tomatoes. Little Evelyn Buyers was lost in admiration of the pansies, and busy choosing her favourites among the vases of sweetpeas. Vera and Elizabeth Black looked rather like flowers themselves when they wandered among the tall blooms. Mrs. Emmet, all in brown, was with

Mrs. Sanger who wore an artistic shade of bois-de-rose and brought her two little girls. She must have felt rather proud of them, since both won prizes. I fancy that Eleanor was the youngest exhibitor, for she is barely four years old and deserves much praise for her prettily arranged basket.

Mrs. Peter Grist looked awfully pretty in blue and gray, and Mrs. Edgar Davidson very chic in navy and white.

It is very nice to see Mrs. Butcher back again after a short holiday at home. She had to leave her little daughter Pearl behind at school this time. Mrs. Borret undertook no light task when she kindly consented to present the prizes. The long table was laden with massive silver cups and charming souvenirs of every description. All of them prizes well worth the winning, and there was a great deal of applause as the victors went up to receive their trophies.

WOLF CUB RALLY.

The Wolf-Cub Packs of the Colony held a most interesting Rally in the Compound of St. Andrews Church on Saturday last when the following packs took part, assisted by the Deep Sea Scouts of the China Fleet Troop.

Mrs. C. B. Easterbrook
Numbers of parents, friends, and small brothers and sisters watched the display, which included races, signalling, sports, and some quaint Jungle Dances.

As everyone knows, it is Rudyard Kipling's wonderful "Jungle Books" (with their weird, of jungle-lore) which forms the basis of cub-training, and special praise is due to the Kowloon Packs for their realistic performance of "Bagheera Dances" and to the Hongkong Packs, for the amusing "Dance of Kaa" in which the 11th Pack (led by Jimmy Tracy) gave a really excellent performance as the snake who swallowed the terrified and fascinated "Banderlog." No wonder that "Kaa" sank into heavy slumber at the end... after swallowing twenty-three fat little "monkeys."

SHEER KHAN.

The most effective dance of all was the "Death of Sheer Khan" given by the Peak Pack. The leader, (little Leslie Womack), showed keen dramatic feeling as he mounted the "council rock" and flung up his arms to declaim that "Sheer Khan" was dead. Another striking feature was the wonderful "Howl" given by Clifton Large, of St. Andrews Pack... when all the cubs of the Colony crept stealthily into the compound and formed a huge circle, while their leader, as "Lone Wolf" in the centre, gave tongue in true Wolf-Cub style.

The games and dances were delightfully explained to the audience by the Rev. G. T. Waldergrave the Scout Commissioner, and the display culminated in the winning of the Totem Pole by St. Andrew's Pack with the Peak pack as a close second, after which a delicious tea (kindly arranged by Mrs. Easterbrook) was served to Cubs and visitors.

Among the large audience we noticed The Bishop of Victoria and Mrs. Owen Hall with their little daughter "Judy", Mr. and Mrs. R. Young and Graeme, Mr. and Mrs. Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. Sverre Berg, Mr. Oscar Eager, and his little daughter Jill. Mrs. Emmet, Mrs. Tracy and Helen. Mrs. Nicol and Hamish, Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. Franklin, and Sylvia and Jane Strickland. Mr. de Ville and Mr. Womack, Mr. and Mrs. Booth, the Rev. W. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Balnes, Mrs. Easterbrook, and Mrs. Denys Reiss, and these were only a few of the large and enthusiastic crowd of onlookers.

THE RACES—A RETROSPECT.

Now that the Annual meeting is over, the public certainly owe a sense of gratitude to the owners who put up so much good sport for them to enjoy and gamble on. Owners will be making up their books if they have not already done so and it is feared that few, if any, will come out on the right side.

One cannot help sympathizing with owners who have nothing but the pari-mutuel to pay their horses expenses out of. I exclude the stakes as in most cases these are spent by the owners' friends a few hours after he has won a race, and it is extraordinary how many friends an owner has when the corks begin to fly. If an owner's horse is the favourite for a race he may get 10 cents back for his $5 ticket and it gives one quite a headache to calculate how many $5 tickets he will have to take to pay for his horse's feed bill.

The launching ceremony of H.M.S. Robin last Wednesday attracted many of the fair sex. Guests are seen leaving the platform after the good ship had been christened by Mrs. Elliot.

This betting "blind" as one might call it, sets even the ordinary punters a bit of a problem, but to the owner it must be a serious matter. One does not know how many tickets are taken on each horse or the total number of tickets taken (all after the race is won or lost, as the case may be). This savours rather of "closing the stable after the horse has been taken out."

We know that the electric totalisator equipment is a very expensive affair and a scarcely justifiable expenditure for our local Jockey Club, but surely something can be done. Over 20 years ago in Calcutta the names of the horses, the number of tickets on each, and the total number was written on two black boards similar to a cricket telegraph and hoisted in a conspicuous place.

The work was continuous before a race, and as one board was hoisted the other was corrected up.

A little organisation is necessary in the pari-mutuel room and possibly a telephone installed in a pit to the front of the lawn or close to where the band at present plays. The expense would be small and one does not suggest that this is "fool proof" but it would certainly give one an indication of how things were going on and frequently some very nice odds might be picked up on outsiders. To our mind anything is better than "blind betting" and should give our generous owners a chance.

SACRED SWORD
OF THE
ROMANOVReported To Have
Been Found

According to a German paper, the "Sacred Sword of the Romanovs" has just been discovered in Leningrad, an item of the Russian crown jewels which was missing when they were confiscated by the Bolsheviks after the Revolution.

Although the Soviet expert authorities sought for it everywhere, it was not to be found. Last month the Winter Palace was being overhauled, and behind one of the walls the workers found an iron box, locked and sealed with the private seal of the last Tsar, Nicholas II. Inside the box was the missing sword in all its brilliance. A piece of paper lay beside it with the word: "The sacred sword of the Romanovs shall not fall into the hands of the enemy."

The weapon dates from the time of the famous Ruriks. It is an old Cossack sword with thirty-six large valuable diamonds in the hilt, which bears the inscription, "For Tsar, Fatherland, and Faith." The last Tsar rarely wore it.

The Soviet Government, it is stated, will sell the sword, if possible. It now has a place in the Museum of the Revolution.

MISSING LAD
FOUNDOn Roof Of Own
House

George Goldin, the 14-year old son of Mr. C. Goldin, the manager of Star Theatre, who was reported missing last Friday, was found by his mother on the roof of his own house, No. 9, Look Road, Kowloon at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The lad disappeared from La Salle College, and we learn that he spent his daytime wandering in Yau-mat, and slept in the roof of his own house at night.

He had been missing on several previous occasions. On the last occasion he disappeared for several months and was later found in Canton. He returned to the Colony about six weeks ago.

DARING ARMED
ROBBERYMoney-Changer
Held Up

Four men, two armed with revolvers, robbed a money-changing and rice shop at 109, Ki Lung Street, Shamshuipo at 7.30 last evening, and departed with $250 in money.

According to a police report, one of the armed men asked the money changer, Kung Si Lin, to change some money. The money changer enquired of the visitor how much he wanted to change, and the latter then pulled out a revolver and drove the victim to the rear cubicle. One other armed man then came into the shop and stood guard, while the other two went behind the counter and took $250 in money.

CARNEGIE TRUST
AND RESEARCHMore Students Taking
Salaried Posts

An encouraging statement regarding the lifting of the industrial depression was made in the annual report of the executive committee of the Carnegie Trust for the Universities of Scotland, submitted to the trustees at a meeting in London yesterday.

"It is a matter of common knowledge," the report stated, "that for some years past the flow from research to university and industrial posts had diminished. It is, therefore, significant that since the awards were instituted last July resignations on account of appointment to salaried posts have again become numerous. It would be premature to infer from this circumstance that the end of the depression is in sight, but the general impression that it has lifted considerably, so far as this country is concerned, is supported by the facts mentioned above."

In regard to the scheme of post-graduate study and research, the committee pointed out that the problem of the trust had not been to find suitable and well-qualified applicants, but to find sufficient means to finance them in their investigations. Had more funds been available there would have been no difficulty in adding to the number, which had nevertheless been no fewer than 569 for the sixth period, an increase of 91 compared with the fifth.

In order that the amount available should meet the requirements of the situation, the committee were compelled to reduce the value of the awards for 1932-33. The stipends of fellows were lowered from £300 to £250; of senior scholars from £200 to £175; and of scholars from £175 to £150 for 1933-34. (The committee had now found it necessary to place all scholarships on the uniform level of £150, and even on that basis only those with the highest qualifications could hope to receive awards.)

PRIME MINISTER ELECTED

A total of 1,162 individuals had been engaged in original investigation under the scheme, in one or more of its branches, since its institution. The subsequent careers of scholars and fellows had been of varied character, and included appointments to university posts ranging from assistants to principals of universities and colleges at home and abroad, appointments in the scholastic world, in industrial research, in Government scientific service, and in medical research.

The expenditure had reached a gross total of £250,772 for a period of 30 years. Under the heading of assistance to students the number of beneficiaries for 1932-33 was 4,234, and the assistance in payment of class fees totalled £57,529.

Sir James Barrie was among the trustees present at the meeting over which Lord Sands presided. The Prime Minister was elected a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. W. Graham.

The Chairman said there were far more applications for organic chemistry than for anything else. The two things which seemed to appeal most to students were the infinitely great, the universe. They were confining their system of part payment of the fees to students whose circumstances called for assistance, and the payment of full fees to the necessitous. A large number of their beneficiaries received no assistance from the country authorities.

"OLSEN'S BIG MOMENT"El Brendel Here
Again

El Brendel, premier Swedish comedian of the screen appearing in "Olsen's Big Moment," Fox Film's latest comedy release, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday. Playing the role of a janitor of an apartment house who takes a hand at patching-up romances, El Brendel is said to be given ample opportunities to supply his audience with laughs. Walter Catlett who has long been known for his comedy roles, plays the part of the drunk. With two such stellar comedians in one picture, "Olsen's Big Moment" gives promise of being a laugh riot.

As a janitor in a swank apartment house, Brendel finds it hard to get away from his night out. On another floor, in the same house, a society matron is trying to persuade her daughter to marry Walter Catlett, a wealthy bachelor. The daughter refuses, on the ground that she loves someone else. Brendel is unfortunately forced into patching up the romance. In his endeavors to do the right thing, he finds himself wound up in a series of complications that eventually get him into trouble. Brendel however manages to bring

SERUM
TREATMENT IN
PNEUMONIASuccess In Young
Patients

The difficulties of assessing the value of a particular method of treatment are well illustrated in the case of the serum treatment of pneumonia, and the Therapeutics Trial Committee of the Medical Research Council must be congratulated on the report issued last week to the Medical Press.

Work at four centres, Aberdeen, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and London, is summarised, and the carefully controlled nature of the investigation indicates that the results can be accepted as a true indication of the value of serum. As is already known, following the great development of similar work in the United States, the modern concentrated serum for pneumonia is only available for this disease when it is due to special types of the pneumococcus microbe, ascertained as quickly as possible after the onset of the malady, by examination of the sputum.

In the present investigation cases of lobar pneumonia were treated with serum in institutions where other patients (generally alternate admissions) were receiving exactly the same treatment in every other detail except for the serum.

Cases admitted longer than five days after the onset of the disease, or dying within twenty-four hours of admission, were not included in the results, which were also restricted to patients between twenty and sixty years of age. From over 1,300 cases of pneumonia in the four centres which have been studied, only 348 were finally treated by serum, and it is from this figure that the results have been analysed.

It is clearly shown that between the ages of twenty and forty definite lowering of the fatality rates was effected by the serum, to an extent of about half the "expected" deaths, from a comparison with patients not receiving serum. Between forty and sixty years of age this effect was not observed. Among the survivors the duration of the illness, especially of the fever, was less among those receiving serum, while the occurrence of empyema (fluid in the chest) was less often found in these patients.

It is calculated from the present series that two-thirds of all cases of lobar pneumonia in Great Britain belong to types suitable for treatment by the sera now available, but it is emphasised in the report that serum can only be successful in these special types. It is too costly, and carries certain disadvantages with it which preclude its use as a harmless measure for every case on the off-chance of its doing good.

The serum has to be injected into a vein, sometimes repeatedly, and the possibility of severe reactions is not remote. The present investigation has shown convincingly the value of serum in certain types of pneumonia, which, although not so high as the earlier enthusiasts believed, is certainly not to be despised.

FISHING BOATS SUNK

On Account Of Sudden Squall

According to a Canton vernacular paper, it is reported, that in the early morning of last Saturday, two large fishing-boats, the "Kung Yuen Tai" and the "Shun Hing Loong" both left Wai Yang District for a fishing trip.

While they were just leaving the Ping Hai Harbour, a sudden squall arose and blew directly towards these boats. Seeing the approaching squall, the boat-masters immediately dropped anchors in order to save their boats from being capsize, but on account of the velocity of the wind, the chains of both anchors snapped. The boats then got out of control and soon sunk.

All the crews on board the boats were thrown into the water and were carried away by the currents, except a few of those, who were able to swim, and who managed to reach the shore.

Nearly fifteen persons are believed to have been drowned, and the total loss is about $20,000.

about a happy ending to the entire affair.

It is reported that Brendel, who has long been known for his Scandinavian antics, plays a role that is far more important than any of his previous endeavors. He was last seen in "My Lips Betray" with Lilian Harvey and John Boles. Walter Catlett, heads the cast, which includes Barbara Weeks and Susan Fleming, last seen as two of the beauties in "My Weakness." The remaining members of the cast are John Arledge, Mabel Turner, Edward Paley and Joseph Sauer. The picture was directed by Malcolm St. Clair from the story by George Marshall. Henry Johnson and James Tynan adapted the story for the screen.

GOLD AT MONTE CARLO AFTER
20 YEARSSpecial Training For
Croupiers

Gold coins are to appear on the gaming tables at Monte Carlo tomorrow evening, after an interval of twenty years. It is believed that this will add glamour to the famous salons and increase their attraction both to professional gamblers and Riviera holiday visitors.

For many weeks croupiers have been undergoing intensive training in handling the coins with the same amazing speed and accuracy with which they distribute—and more frequently collect—the chips and plaques representing sums of from 5,000 to 100,000 francs (about £1,250 at par).

A large gold reserve, the extent of which is not disclosed, has been kept in strong-rooms for many months past in Paris, and has now been transferred to Monte Carlo. It consists of American 5, 10 and 20-dollar pieces, eventually Monnaie pieces, similar to those in use before the war, will be used, it is hoped, put at present the French Government Mint, working overtime on its own new coinage, could not guarantee delivery before the end of the Riviera season.

At first the gold coins will be used on two of the principal tables in the International Sporting Club, but gold will shortly be seen also in the salles privées of the Casino. The Casino is stated to have in hand already gold to the value of 10,000,000 francs (about £125,000 at par).

Small Premium

The purchases of gold will be effected by first buying special exchangeable jetons. A small premium will be charged, 1,000 francs being, it is said, the price of gold to the nominal value of 1,000 francs, making the premium about 15s at par.

The most elaborate precautions are being taken against the possible advent of international crooks. There is no temptation to steal a chip, which has no intrinsic value, and, in the case of the larger amounts, is numbered and not negotiable. But gold is another matter.

Visitors to Monte Carlo have no idea of the remarkable organisation, which already exists for their protection.

Not long ago a telephone message from a detective notified headquarters that a notorious criminal had been seen crossing the frontier by car. Within an hour he had been traced to one of the leading hotels, and from there to the Casino, where he was in the act of taking out a membership ticket. Half an hour later he had been expelled from the Principality. The regulations for the admission of visitors are now being made even stricter.

Elaborate Precautions

There are other precautions in case a criminal does contrive to get in. Visitors will have noticed in the centre of each table in the gaming-rooms a metal compartment built into the table itself, and used for banknotes which have been exchanged for chips. It is, however, not generally known that these boxes have special sliding steel lids, which at the first alarm of suspicion can be instantly closed by the croupier pressing his foot on a mechanical device under the table.

That the apparatus works with lightning speed is vouched for by at least one attendant, who some time ago lost the tips of two fingers on the occasion of a test alarm being given. The Casino and the Sporting Club contain many other electrical devices for the protection of the immense amounts of money which circulate in the rooms.

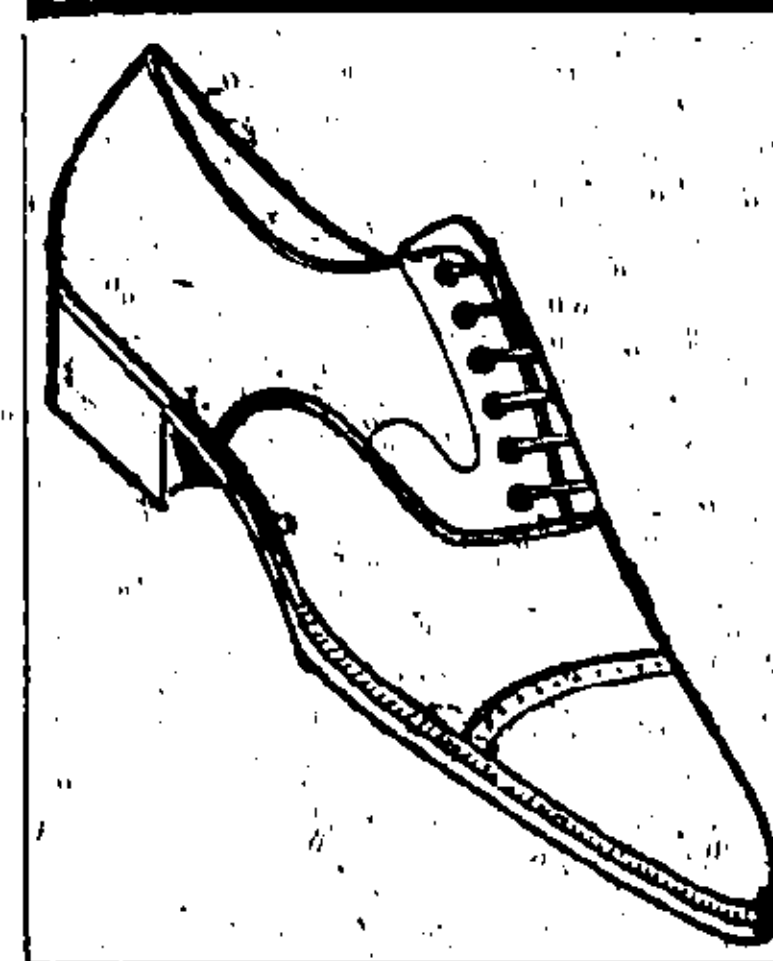

BANKRUPTCY
PETITIONPartner Bears
Brunt

The collapse of several Chinese banks in October last, following a run by the creditors, was recalled at Bankruptcy proceedings at the Supreme Court of Saturday, when the adjourned public examination of Mr. Pun Hui Cho, managing partner of the Shun Loong and Cheung Loong Bank was concluded before Mr. Justice A. D. A. MacGregor.

Witnesses said that all the other officials of the two banks absconded, leaving him to bear the brunt of the liabilities.

A petition made by Wong Cho, trading as the Nam Kwong Brothers' Handkerchief and Gutter Company, was dismissed but postponed by the Kowloon Silk Store and the Butterfly Piece Goods and Silk Store were granted.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF OPIUM

Young Chinese Fined.

A young Chinese named Hui See, described as a shop foki, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy on Saturday morning, charged with unlawful possession of two tael of unprepared opium.

It was stated by a Chinese detective that the defendant was arrested near the Sai Kung Street, Yau-mat, with the raw opium tied up in a piece of oil-paper round his waist. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $34 or one month hard labour in default.

AT THE MARINE COURT

Leaving Port Without a Clearance.

Leung Shing, coxswain of the steam launch Sun Tung On, appeared before Commander Hole at the Marine Court on Saturday morning, charged with (a) leaving port without a clearance or permit from the Harbour Master and (b) failing to produce a boat licence when requested by the Water Police.

The defendant pleaded guilty to both charges and told the Court that the boat licence was taken away from board by one of his foks by mistake. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $50 or six weeks hard labour on the first charge and another of $10 or one week on the second.

BANISHEE RETURNS

Caught Begging in Queen's Road

Before Mr. Balfour at Central Police Court on Saturday, a Chinese named Chung See was charged with unlawfully begging in Queen's Road Central, and committing a breach of his Deportation Order. The defendant pleaded not guilty and said that he was only strolling in Queen's Road Central and did not beg from any pedestrians for money at all. Evidence was then given by the prosecuting officer that the defendant was banished from the Colony in 1932. His Worship, however, dismissed the first charge, with a caution and imposed a sentence of six months hard labour on the second count.

"ONE WAY PASSAGE"

At Alhambra

As a change from melodramas played in railway trains, hotels and other assorted places where humanity congregates, Warner Bros have devised "One Way Passage" now at the Alhambra. The story takes place almost exclusively on board a liner, travelling across the Pacific ocean.

The idea has its limitations and the probabilities have had to be strained in order to provide the necessary action and excitement. Dan Hardesty (William Powell) is an escaped murderer returning to San Quentin with Steve Burke (Warren Hymer) a San Francisco detective, who has trailed him half way round the globe to eventually catch his man at the International Bar at Hong Kong, when they meet, Joan Ames (Kay Francis), an invalid heiress, who is returning to America after an Eastern vacation.

Dan and Joan in love with each other, but Dan with the shadow of the gallows overhanging his happiness and Joan dreading the fatal heart-attack which is to end her life, fail to find the happy ending although they satisfy their hunger for love.

The film has many queer twists and turns, and pathos, love, and laughter are happily blended together to make the picture an entertaining one. This thoroughly meretricious story would be quite unbelievable if it were not competently acted and capably told.

But William Powell and Kay Francis do absolutely all that is required of them as the convict and heiress—Mr. Powell with quiet efficiency and Miss Francis with her customary charm. Frank McHugh too, is well cast as Skipper, a pick-pocket, while Herbert Mundin and Aline MacMahon render good support in minor roles.

"DANCING LADY"

Joan Crawford Scores
Again

M-G-M's new and considerably anticipated co-starring vehicle for Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, "Dancing Lady," is the highspot of the entertainment features this week. The picture, which is now at Queen's Theatre, is produced on an ultra-vivid scale with a cast which boasts a score or more of well-known stage and motion picture names as well as a hundred chorus beauties picked from some ten thousand applicants in various cities throughout the country.

"Dancing Lady" reunites Gable and the sparkling Miss Crawford for the fourth time. In the present picture Miss Crawford plays the type of role upon which she built her greatest popularity in "Our Dancing Daughters" and its equally successful sequels, "Our Modern Maidens" and "Our Blushing Brides." She is seen as a girl born to dance who fights her way to fame on Broadway.

Gable's role is another two-faced characterization. He plays the part of a hard-boiled dance director in a musical comedy who eventually falls in love with the fresh chorine whom he has tried unsuccessfully to browbeat. Outstanding names in the large supporting cast include Franchot Tone, who played with Miss Crawford in "To-day We Live," May Robson, Winnie Lighter, the famous stage dancer Fred Astaire, the celebrated literary with Robert Benchley, Ted Healy and his stooges, Gloria Foy, Art Jarrett and Grant Mitchell.

The story of "Dancing Lady" was adapted from the sensational novel by James Warner Bellah, which appeared serially in a national magazine. It is described as a fast modern romance of backstage Broadway with novel angles and situations which make it different in every respect from similar themes. The picture was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, who produced the highly successful Norma Shearer picture, "Smilin' Through."

The music in the production includes a group of snappy new numbers slung by Miss Crawford, Art Jarrett, Eddy, one of America's outstanding concert baritone, included in the song numbers are "Let's Go Bavarian," "Heigh Ho," and "Everything I Have Is Yours" by Burton Lane and Barole Adamson; "That's the Rhythm of the Day" by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart; and "Dancing Lady" by Jimmy McHugh and Dorothy Fields.

JAPAN'S REAL NAME

That Japan should be called "Nippon" universally, in accordance with her original title, was the subject of motions recently presented by members of the Seiyukai and the Minseitō to the House of Representatives.

It was reasoned in the explanations for the motions, that, while the proper name for this country is unquestionably "Nippon," different names have been used within this country and abroad, such as Nihon, Nippon, Japan, Japon, and so forth, and so forth, and such habit greatly impedes the promotion of national spirit.

MYRNA LOY IN NEW ROLEMaer Baer As Leading Man

Of interest in connection with the showing of "The Prizefighter and the Lady," due on Wednesday at the Queen's, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of the prize ring, is the fact that the picture marks Myrna Loy's first singing appearance before the camera and microphone.

With the exception of a brief sequence in "Love Me To-night" in which she hummed a tune, the glamorous Miss Loy has never before had a singing role in pictures. She has studied and been interested in vocal work since she was a small girl in school and at last she has an opportunity to reveal her talent to her many film fans.

In "The Prizefighter and the Lady" Miss Loy plays a night-club

Flying Down To Rio

Good, light entertainment. That is the best way of describing the current attraction at the King's Theatre, "Flying Down to Rio," which features Dolores Del Rio in the principal role with a supporting cast which includes Gene Raymond, Raul Roulien, Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire.

All the elements of gaiety are to entertainer who falls in love with Max Baer, the young fighter who slugs his way to the championship match in the screen story. Together with Baer, who makes his picture debut in this production, the cast features Primo Carnera, Jack Dempsey, Walter Huston, Otto Kruger and Vince Barnett, under the direction of W.S. Van Dyke.

be found in this picture. Songs, music, dancing, girls and romance. The story is simple enough, but at the same time it proves to be a suitable vehicle for the many excellent song numbers and dances that are included in the film.

Nor is the entertainment confined to songs and dances, for some of the wit and humour which the film contains is very clever; indeed, dancing on the wings of an aeroplane, with acrobats hurling the dancers from one plane to another is one of the many thrilling and unusual sights to be seen.

A musical show in mid air is a novel idea enough and in talking pictures such a theme provides for very many attractive items. It must be mentioned also that more than 200 girls appear in the various scenes of this film.

The cartoon which precedes the main picture is quite a clever and amusing one and the programme on the whole is very acceptable.

Lancashire

Proposal

London, Mar. 11

It is understood that the priciple of the memorandum which the Lancashire representatives of the Anglo-Japanese cotton conference handed to the Japanese on Tuesday, regarding the geographical scope of the discussion is a proposal that, for the purpose of negotiations, markets should be considered in five divisions, namely, the British Empire, Australasia, the Japanese

Empire, South America, and other countries.

Thus there would be the discussion of the British and Colon-markets as one division, paragraphically with the discussion of other areas.—Reuter.

ACTION ENDORSED

Representatives of all sections of the Lancashire Cotton and Silk Industries in Manchester this afternoon endorsed action of the negotiation committee in submitting a new demand to the Japanese delegation last Wednesday in an effort to break the deadlock over the geographical scope of an agreement which would be reached by the end of the month.

The newspapers state that document reiterates the view restriction of any agreement markets in Britain and the ones is out of the question but do not wish to create an impression that they are unwilling to those markets and they are they should be discussed in

"HOLY TERROR"

Everything that makes for a gripping, thrilling, rousing entertainment with the added elements of mystery and romance, is embraced in "A Holy Terror" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday and Monday.

George O'Brien who has no peer in outdoor romantic roles is co-featured with Sally Eilers, one of the most popular and beautiful leading women on the screen.

"A Holy Terror," based on Max

Brand's story, "Trailin'," depicts the adventures of a young society player who finds his father shot to death and decides to seek retribution. An unusual twist to the story makes for a decidedly different climax.

In the supporting cast are Rita

La Roy, Humphrey Bogart, James

Kirkwood and Stanley Fields.

LIVER CURE FOR SEA-SICKNESS?

Injectors That May Abolish It

Hopes of an effective means of preventing sea, train, and air sickness have been aroused as the result of recent research at the Middlesex Hospital.

So far the research has been concerned only with X-ray sickness—a complaint which makes it impossible for some cancer patients to continue with X-ray treatment. A German physician, Dr. Dietel, found that X-ray sickness could be cured by the injection of liver extract.

His work was repeated recently by Dr. Douglas Webster, head of the radiological department at Middlesex Hospital. He found that it was completely successful. When patients hitherto prostrated by X-ray sickness were given the extract the sickness disappeared.

The use of liver extract opens up extremely interesting possibilities," Dr. Webster told a representative of The Daily Telegraph last night. "I have only recently begun to use it in cases of X-ray sickness, and I have not had the opportunity of discovering whether it can be used more widely.

But in view of the fact that the people who have got the greatest relief from it are those susceptible to sea-sickness and train-sickness the extract may be able to cure both these types of sickness.

"If so, it will do an immense amount of good, for it can be obtained very cheaply. Cancer patients are already overjoyed at its results."

Aid For Cancer Patients

The discovery is regarded as a great advance in the treatment of cancer. A member of the staff of the Middlesex Hospital said that quite 10 per cent. of the patients treated with X-rays suffered from sickness afterwards.

"In some cases," he said, "it has been necessary to suspend the treatment altogether. In others it has had to be modified to such an extent that it has been of little or no use in stemming the progress of the disease. Many patients have pleaded to be allowed to die rather than endure the sickness."

The extract is injected into the muscle. Any nurse with training in inter-muscular injection can carry it out.

Governor's Pony Sets Up New Record

NELL GWYN'S IMPRESSIVE RUN AT FIRST EXTRA RACE MEETING

Woodland Stag's Great Victory In Final Race

(BY "MORNING DEW")

The prediction that the new Australian ponies were much superior to those which have previously raced here, was amply borne out when in a race for hitherto unsuccessful Australian ponies, Nell Gwyn broke the record for the mile, lowering the previous best time by a matter of 3.2 seconds. This is the first time that the new Australian ponies have appeared on a dry track in Hong Kong, and it looks very much as if further records are to be broken.

Mr. Leo Frost, who will be leaving Hong Kong on holiday to-morrow, headed the list of winning jockeys by securing two firsts and two seconds. He started in the last event on Woodland Stag and won a very beautiful race, the ex-Champion Australian coming home in the fastest time of her career.

The "Daily Doubles" fell to two favourites, with the result that those who successfully spotted the two ponies were rewarded with the comparatively small dividend of $23.

Diana Bay In Tight Finish

Diana Bay finished up a winner by a short head in the Hong Kong Handicap "A" Class where, carrying top weight, he was very hotly pressed by Soldier of Britain who enjoyed a handicap of 23 pounds. Having failed badly at the Annual Race Meeting, Soldier of Britain put up a surprisingly good race. The dry condition of the track was probably responsible for this reversal of form, as well as the fact that he carried a light weight.

RACING BOY BEATEN
Racing Boy, the hot favourite for the first race was beaten by a short head by Blaise over the five furlong event where there were twelve starters. F. Fa. got well away at the gate, followed by National Day and Iron Grey. The favourite lay sixth at the start and there was not much change until at the bend, before entering the straight, when Iron Grey took the lead and Racing Boy improved his position. At the distance post these two drew ahead with Blaise making up ground. In an exciting finish Mr. Fan brought Blaise home, a short head in front of Racing Boy, who in turn was a short head in front of Iron Grey.

KING'S FANCY
There were no fewer than 24 starters in the novices race and at the outset the field separated into three lots. King's Fancy who led in the first lot won by a short head from Prima Donna, who only came through the second lot at the bend and did not dispute the lead until the last hundred yards of the race. Budge was third, having been in the first lot most of the way. Spinaway, Lemberg and Ribble were never in the picture.

THE FIRST "LEG"
As predicted King's Bounty won the "All Out" Stakes by leading all the way home. Mr. Chang was second off the gate, Mr. Deitz on Mayflower getting off first. In a few strides, however, King's Bounty had got ahead and Mayflower dropped back to take second place with Racing Pride. Navy Hall came up with them at the bend and at the head of the straight it looked like anybody's race, but King's Bounty, enjoying an advantage of a couple of lengths, remained in front. Racing Pride was a good second, while close up was Mayflower with Navy Hall a head behind.

RANDWICK PLATE
Why the public made Princess Angeline a favourite in this race is difficult to guess. Nell Gwyn and Just That led the field in that order and finished in the same order. His Excellency's candidate coming home in the record time of 1.47.3, winning by three lengths from Just That. Saucy Face came up with a big rush in the straight and was only beaten by a neck by Mr. Seth's pony. The others were never in the picture.

The record run was timed as follows 27.2, 53.1, 1.20.2, 1.47.3. It will be seen that the time for the first six furlongs was also a record.

THE TYTAM HANDICAP
All the favourites were beaten in this race, where Dancing Butterfly, carrying a light weight, led all the way home.

Classic Hall who was four lengths behind the leader most of the way, failed in the home straight, while Tiny Star had a bad start and could not come through until it was too late. When he did he was too tired and could only finish fourth behind In Good Time and Young Chap. Surprise was never prominent. The winner paid the biggest dividend of the day.

THE TYTAM HANDICAP
There was an exciting finish in this race when Diana Bay won by a short head from Soldier of Britain, the two being prominent all the way round and putting up a neck-and-neck race up the straight. Diana Bay led as usual, but Soldier of Britain, in spite of a bad start, came through the field and stayed within a couple of lengths of the leader, with King's Justice, Brechin and Cossack's Beauty following. The race up the straight saw both Brechin and Cossack's Beauty drop out to give Sado fourth place behind King's Justice.

THE SECOND "LEG"
Soldier of Italy with Mr. Deitz up won the second leg of the Double. The pony went to the post a favourite and linked with King's Bounty, who won the first leg odds-on, the dividend for the "double" was only $23.

Bran Tub was well fancied here but failed to get a place, putting up an indifferent race. Kitsap was prominent all the way followed by Soldier of Italy and Brass Idol. The "Soldier" came through in the straight to win. Kitsap stayed on for second place while Toishan finished third.

BRIGHT STAR
Bright Star and Flying Tourist, the former ridden by S. Y. Leung, and the latter by Mr. L. G. Frost, were the favourites for the Hong Kong Handicap "B" Division and they finished in that order. Mike led over the first five furlongs when Flying Tourist took the lead with Bright Star lying third. Flying Tourist led into the straight but was unable to withstand the challenge from Bright Star. Sporting Life finished third, after being among the vanguard for most of the journey.

OLD FAVOURITE WINS
Woodland Stag ran the fastest race of her career when he won the last event on the card in a fraction over 1.43. Mutiny Bay and Alacrity (two new Australians) shared the betting with Woodland Stag and finished second and third respectively. There were eleven starters.

Portia, carrying a light weight (140 lbs.) made the running followed by Alacrity with Woodland Stag and Mutiny Bay some lengths behind. These two, however, put in a beautiful finish, Woodland Stag beating his stable companion to win comfortably.

JAPAN'S NAVAL POLICY

No "Secret" Ships Or Bases

In recent months there have been many sensational reports of Japan's naval activities, such as the alleged building of mysterious ships and the establishment of secret war bases in the mandated South Sea Islands. All these stories are categorically denied by a competent Japanese authority whom I have interviewed.

"There has been no change in the general principles of our naval policy," said my informant. "No 'mammoth' building programme is in view, and even the second replenishment programme recommended by the Navy Department last August has yet to receive Parliamentary sanction. This provides for two cruisers and two aircraft-carriers, all of moderate size; fourteen destroyers, six submarines, a minelayer, and some auxiliary craft.

MODERNISED BATTLESHIPS

"New construction for the time being is restricted to four 8,500-ton cruisers and a limited number of destroyers, torpedoboats, and submarines. Further, certain battleships are being modernised, following the example set by the United States and Great Britain.

"Reports that we are building 'pocket submarines,' carrying a crew of one, two, or three men, have no foundation whatever. Even if it were technically possible to construct such freak vessels, they would be quite useless to our Navy. All Japanese men-of-war must be staunch and seaworthy to face the heavy weather that is so often encountered in our latitudes.

"Since we are limited by treaty to 60 per cent. of the tonnage possessed by the two leading navies, we naturally try to keep our smaller fleet at the highest pitch of efficiency. Quality, in short, must compensate for quantity."

For reasons of economy a large number of Japanese warships are kept in reserve. All vessels in commission have full crews on board, and are maintained in immediate readiness for active service, but only four out of the nine Japanese battleships were in commission last year, the other being in reserve or undergoing reconstruction. A large number of modern cruisers and destroyers were also on the reserve list.

According to my informant Japan has built no new naval base in the South Sea Islands or elsewhere. The old naval station at Port Arthur was re-established last year, but only as a secondary base.

It has been semi-officially announced that Japan will demand full naval equality at the next conference in 1935. If this demand were conceded in principle it does not follow that the Japanese Navy would be built up to the British or the United States level of tonnage. In fact, it is exceedingly doubtful whether the state of her finances would permit Japan to launch any major scheme of naval expansion.

Scottish Air-Mail Letter

Prince of Wales to Visit Glasgow: Scottish Universities By-election: Lord Roseberry's Offer to the Nation: Royal Visit to Edinburgh: Poverty of the German People

(Special Air-Mail Service)

PRINCE OF WALES TO VISIT GLASGOW

Edinburgh, February 20. Glasgow will be visited by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales on April 13, when he will declare open the Boy Scout Exhibition in the Kelvin Hall—the greatest show of its kind ever organised in Scotland.

An official communication concerning the Prince's visit has just been received by Glasgow Boy Scout Association in which it states that it is the Prince's earnest desire to visit the exhibition personally.

The exhibition was fixed to run from March 18 to 24, but this date has been found unsuitable to His Royal Highness, and the exhibition will therefore be held from April 21, the Prince performing the opening ceremony on the evening of April 13.

The Glasgow Scouts are wild with delight at bringing off this coup de grace in connection with their exhibition, and are determined to give the Prince of Wales a rousing welcome.

The Prince, who is Chief Scout for Wales, has always taken a deep interest in the Boy Scout movement, having attended several of the jamborees in this country, and slept under canvas.

GREAT PREPARATIONS

For months now the Scouts have been working in Glasgow to make the exhibition in the Kelvin Hall a memorable event and to demonstrate to the public what Scouting really means.

Among the outstanding exhibits which the Prince will see will be a newspaper, "The Tenderfoot Times," which will be printed and published on the spot.

There will be arena displays in which hundreds of Cubs, Scouts, and Rovers will take part, while a variety performance will be given including the Scout play, "Of One Blood."

It is probable that the Prince when he does come North in April will perform other functions, but as yet no definite programme apart from the Scout Exhibition has been arranged.

CHAIRMANSHIP OF DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

I understand that a representation has been made to the Scottish Office authorities by a leading Scottish Home Ruler regarding the appointment of a successor to Sir Robert Greig as chairman of the Department of Agriculture. It is apprehended, apparently, that an Englishman may be appointed to the vacant office next month, and that accordingly influence should be brought to bear to ensure that a Scotsman is given the appointment. The point has not been taken up yet, but a pertinent observation is that if the principle urged by the Home Rule leaders is to be applied to its logical conclusion it would mean a great clearance of Scots from Whitehall.

SCOTTISH UNIVERSITIES BY-ELECTION

In the House of Commons yesterday a writ was issued in connection with the Scottish Universities Parliamentary by-election caused by the death of Dr. D. M. Cowan.

At present there is only one candidate, Dr. George A. Morrison, late rector of Robert Gordon's College, Aberdeen. Dr. Morrison was adopted as the Liberal candidate by the Scottish Universities Central Liberal Council, and his candidature has been endorsed by Educational Institute of Scotland.

On page 14 appears a letter which Dr. Morrison has sent to the Business Committee of the General Council of Aberdeen University giving his views on the attitude towards University bursaries of the Educational Endowments Commissioners.

LORD ROSEBERRY'S OFFER TO THE NATION

Lord Rosebery, it is understood, has offered, as a gift to the nation, a group of small sixteenth-century houses adjoining the Canongate entrance to the courtyard of the Palace of Holyrood House, in Edinburgh. The property was at one time occupied by Palace servants, but in recent years it has been falling into disrepair.

The late Lord Rosebery purchased the houses to prevent the demolition tion of a historical relic, and it is thought that the Office of works, if the offer of the present Earl is accepted, could retain the characteristic external features of the buildings while adapting them internally for use by the Palace staff.

FOUR NEW ACADEMICIANS OF THE SCOTTISH ACADEMY

At a General Assembly of the Scottish Academy in Edinburgh recently four elections were made, of associates to the rank of academician. Those elected were:

Mr. Charles Oppenheimer, Kirkcudbright, painter.

Mr. J. Massey Rhind, Edinburgh, sculptor.

Mr. Reginald Fairlie, Edinburgh, architect.

Mr. H. O. Torbolton, Edinburgh, architect.

Mr. Oppenheimer, who was born in Manchester in 1875, is a landscape painter in both oils and water-colours, and works of his have been purchased for Manchester, Oldham, and Southport Art Galleries, and the Whitworth Gallery.

Mr. Fairlie began practice in Edinburgh in 1909, and among the principal buildings he has designed are the Abbey Church, Fort Augustus, and St. Andrew's Church, Rothsay. He was also responsible for the restoration of the medieval University Chapel at St. Andrews.

TWO SIDES TO IT

Golf greenkeepers tell me that this has been the shortest "close season" in memory. Ordinarily the winter months scare the golfer off and leave the greenkeepers ample time for drainage work and building new tees, but apart from the January wet spell there has been practically no cessation of play. But if the greenkeepers aren't satisfied there is another side to the position. The shorter close season ought to mean a higher standard of golf this summer. So what price the "Amateur" for Scotland this year.

ROYAL VISIT TO EDINBURGH

There is much interest in Edinburgh in the rumour that the King and Queen may hold Court at Holyroodhouse in July, but apparently no definite arrangements have yet been made. A royal visit to Edinburgh always brings good business, attracting tourists, and especially Americans, in large numbers, while the garden parties keep those who provide dresses, etc., very busy. Withal, a royal visit restores to Edinburgh its ancient glamour and dignity as the capital of Scotland.

NEW ROYAL SCOTTISH ACADEMICIANS

The Royal Scottish Academy, at a general assembly in Edinburgh yesterday, elected the following four Associates to the rank of Academician:

Mr. Charles Oppenheimer, Kirkcudbright, painter; Mr. J. Massey Rhind, Edinburgh, sculptor; Mr. Reginald Fairlie, Edinburgh, and Mr. H. O. Torbolton, Edinburgh, both architects.

Mr. Fairlie was recently entrusted with the design for the extension of the National Library Buildings in Edinburgh.

The president of the academy, Mr. George presented diplomas of membership to the following:—Professor R. K. Hannay, honorary member and professor of ancient history; Sir George Macdonald, LL.D., honorary member and professor of antiquities; Mr. J. Macdonald Milne, A.R.S.A.; Mr. James Kay, A.R.S.A.; and Mr. Behno Schötz, A.R.S.A.

POVERTY OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE

Mr. Archibald Jamieson, addressing the members of the Rotary Club of Glasgow at their weekly luncheon meeting yesterday on impressions of his travels through Germany and Austria, pointed out that last year only 2,500,000 persons in Germany out of a population of 65,000,000 possessed a capital of 2500, while 95 per cent. of the people were earning less than £120 a year. That was probably the fundamental reason, he said, why the house-painter, Hitler, had risen to power. Hitler, in his view, was the price Germany had to pay for the failure of the Allies to implement their promises under the Treaty of Versailles.

Mr. Jamieson deputised for Sir High S. Robertson, of the Orpheus Choir, who was prevented from being present owing to indisposition.

GERMAN YOUTH

The Salem System Of Education

Herr Kurt Hahn, formerly director of the Schools Baden, gave a lecture on "The Salem System of Education and the Problem of German Youth" at the Institute of Education, Southampton Row, W.C., last month when Mr. C. A. Elliott, headmaster of Eton College, presided.

In his previous lectures Herr Hahn described how Salem, founded by Prince Max of Baden on the pattern of the English public schools, has developed on individual lines. There were two methods of governing the young, he said. They could either fetter them by distrust or bind them by trust. He would back a spirited boy any day to defeat the first method. He believed in the second method, but only on condition that they fortified it by a daily incentive to self-supervision.

That was what the Salem training plan achieved. They endeavoured to keep alive the imagination of the boy of action. They decided not to let organized games begin until the thirteenth year, and found that the imagination of the child survived and grew strong till it was safe even in adolescence.

They gave the boys plenty of leisure and they were not afraid of it, for they were provided with healthy fodder for their leisure.

To keep their imagination safe, however, they found it necessary to dethrone games, even in the senior schools. They rationed them, and as a result the games had become more dignified and festive. In order that the intellectual and spiritual interests might hold their own against the many rival activities of the school they had to have inspiring and creative researches, and they would not get them unless they gave them a great deal of free time for their creative work.

He was once told by a man in the Prussian Ministry of Education that the duration of mental sanity on the part of any master in a public school was five years. (Laughter.)

The "Grande Passion" He believed that faith in one's destiny should not depend on lucky accidents in later life. It was their business as teachers to give it to the children entrusted to their care. They could do it by satisfying the grande passion that almost every normal boy and girl had, often hidden and unrealized to the end of life. At Salem they had discovered that if they brought out the grande passion before or at the beginning of puberty, it grew to be the guardian angel of the years of adolescence, while the unprotected, and undiscovered boy rarely maintained his vitality intact from 11 to 15.

They had proved that the so-called "loutish years" could be avoided and the freshness and strength of childhood maintained throughout adolescence and handed to the man as a lifelong source of strength.

Salem was hoping one day to start a big school in Hamburg, and by the training plan, to control the home activities of the boys. Their Old Boys' League since 1925 had carried through these rules to be followed during the university career: Four weeks' annual training without drinking or smoking; for the German sports badge; three months' work in a factory; and a six weeks' course in sailing, flying, or riding school. Their aim was to build a Salem house in Heidelberg. There was the crisis in March. The Margrave of Baden, the son of the founder, took charge, and he had, by courage and sincerity, won the trust of the Government. They had guaranteed that the Salem system would not be changed. Now all depended on children, masters, and parents not losing patience and heart during the transitional period.

The Government would protect Salem; only desertion could destroy it. But he believed that the system would live.

DISTRICT SAVINGS BANK

To Be Established In Kuk Kiang

A message from Chinese sources states that with a view to strengthening the finance of the inhabitants, the Magistrate of the Kuk Kiang District has recently decided to establish a large savings bank in that district.

On account of this important conference was therefore held to discuss the ways and means for the investment of capital in connection with the bank, and during the proceedings, a large sum of money in shares was applied for and allocated.

It is reported that plans have already been made and submitted to the District Authorities, and as soon as they have been approved, construction work will immediately commence.

It is said that future prospect of this savings bank seem to be very promising.

Weak Teeth

are usually due to a lack of Calcium (lime) in the body

For Women

Kalzana is of the greatest value in regulating the bodily functions. Any lack of calcium results in pain and prostration, but these are quickly relieved as soon as the shortage is made good. By taking Kalzana, the scientifically approved calcium treatment, you can avoid pain and discomfort. By restoring the balance of calcium in a natural way, Kalzana must do you good, and cannot possibly be harmful.

Remember that your teeth are living parts of your body. The food they require is Kalzana, the calcium food. If your teeth get too little calcium, they become weak and liable to decay.

Such teeth are a constant cause of pain and trouble and never look healthy.

Start taking Kalzana and notice how quickly your teeth become strong and white. By taking Kalzana, pain and trouble are prevented, decay is arrested and your teeth permanently strengthened.

Make your teeth strong and white with KALZANA

Weak and difficult Children are often so because of a lack of calcium in the body. Rapid growth demands a great deal of calcium to form strong bones and healthy tissues. When kept short of calcium, children become nervous and moody, and difficult to manage.

Children

"A listless difficult Child" is a child whose constitution is out of order," writes a famous physician.

After having examined a great many difficult children, he writes: "I could prove that the blood of many so-called 'difficult' children was poor in Calcium."

Children take

Kalzana Tablets like sweets, a sure sign that their system is in urgent need of it.

In Diarrhoea—

Kalzana hastens the healing of the ulcerated and inflamed areas and soothes the nerves. With Kalzana the diarrhoea will very quickly stop.

"By the use of 6 Kalzana tablets daily the Diarrhoea (in two severe cases) was stopped in an amazingly short time," writes Dr. ZUNTZ, the world-famous Physician.

The opinion of well-known medical papers about KALZANA

"The Pharmaceutical Journal of New Zealand," Jan. 1930.

"Kalzana has been used with very good results in cases of calcium deficiency, such as bone diseases, dental caries, rickets, weakness in growing children, during pregnancy and lactation—in fact, in all cases where a diet with an excessive calcium content is necessary."

Rickets too are a typical sign of a lack of calcium. Kalzana will set all that right, and very soon your child will be happy and healthy again.

"The British Journal of Tuberculosis," April 1929.

"We have employed Kalzana with much advantage in the management of delicate children. It seems to be of considerable service in cases of rickets and other morbid conditions of bone and also as a preventive of dental caries. For pregnant women Kalzana is often beneficial."

Lack of Calcium

in the body causes many different complaints. Regain your health by taking

KALZANA

The Calcium Food

At all Chemists

Made by the manufacturers of Sanatogen & Formant

Characteristic signs of lack of calcium in the body are:

- ✓ Eczema
- ✓ Night sweats
- ✓ Inflammation of the Skin, caused through unhealthy blood.
- ✓ Nettlerash
- ✓ Colds of long duration
- ✓ Bleeding of the Nose and other forms of excessive bleeding.
- ✓ Loss of Hair
- ✓ Tooth decay in grown-ups and children.

These complaints show that your body is suffering from a lack of calcium. Kalzana will conquer your complaint by removing its cause (lack of calcium).

Note

Only in the scientific form of Kalzana—a combination of calcium-lactate and sodium-lactate—are you sure that the calcium will be absorbed and retained by the body. Ordinary calcium administrations are often useless—it must be Kalzana.

Before Baby comes

The expectant mother should be careful to remember that she must supply all the calcium needed to form her baby's bones and tissues. Kalzana gives all the extra calcium needed, and corrects any shortage in the mother's diet. It protects the mother against loss of hair, decay of the teeth, vomiting, general weakness and debility, whilst it also ensures her baby against any predisposition to rickets.

Preserve your own health, and safeguard your baby's by taking Kalzana in good time.

(Use it during the last six months of your pregnancy.)

"ONE WAY

PASSAGE"

At Alhambra

As a change from melodramas played in railway trains, hotels and other assorted places where humanity, congregates, Warner Bros have devised "One Way Passage" now at the Alhambra, to take place almost exclusively on board a liner, travelling across the Pacific ocean.

The idea has its limitations and the probabilities have had to be strained in order to provide the necessary action and excitement.

Dan Hardesty (William Powell) is an escaped murderer returning to San Quentin with Steve

Burke (Warren Hymer) a San Francisco detective, who has trailed him half way round the globe to eventually catch his man at the International Bar at Hong Kong, when they meet Joan

Ames (Kay Francis), an invalid

heir, who is returning to America

after an Eastern vacation.

Dan and Joan in love with each other, but Dan with the shadow of the gallows overhanging his happiness and Joan dreading the fatal heart-attack which is to end her life, fail to find the happy ending although they satisfy their hunger for love.

The film has many queer twists and turns, and patches, love, and laughter are happily blended together to make the picture an entertaining one.

This thoroughly meretricious story would be quite unbelievable if it were not competently acted and capably told.

But William Powell and Kay

Francis do absolutely all that is required them as the convict and heir—Mr. Powell with quiet efficiency and Miss Francis with her customary charm. Frank McHugh too, is well cast as Skippy, a pickpocket, while Herbert Mundin and Aline MacMahon render good support in minor roles.

Joan Crawford Scores

Again

M-G-M's new and considerably anticipated co-starring vehicle for Joan Crawford and Clark

Cable, "Dancing Lady" is the highspot of the entertainment features this week. The picture, which is now at Queen's Theatre is produced on an ultralavish scale with a cast which boasts a score or more of well-known stage and motion picture names as well as a hundred chorus beauties picked from some ten thousand applicants in various cities throughout the country.

"Dancing Lady" reunites Gable and the sparkling Miss Crawford for the fourth time.

In the present picture

Miss Crawford plays the type of role upon which she built her greatest popularity in "Our Dancing Daughters" and its equally successful sequels "Our

Modern Maidens" and "Our

Blushing Brides." She is seen as a girl born to dance who fights her way to fame on Broadway.

Gable's role is another two-fisted characterization. He plays the part of a hard-boiled dance director in a musical comedy who eventually falls in love with the fresh chorine whom he has tried unsuccessfully to browbeat. Outstanding names in the large supporting cast include Franchot

Tone, who played with Miss Crawford in "To-day We Live," May

Robson, Winnie Lighter, the famous stage dancer Fred Astaire, the celebrated literary with Robert

Benchly, Ted Healy and his stoo-ges, Gloria Foy, Art Jarrett and Grant Mitchell.

The story of "Dancing Lady" was adapted from the sensational novel by James Warner Bellah, which appeared serially in a national magazine. It is described as a fast modern romance of backstage Broadway with novel angles and situations which make it different in every respect from similar themes. The picture was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, who produced the highly successful Norma Shearer picture, "Smilin' Through."

The music in the production includes a group of snatchy

new numbers sung by

Miss Crawford, Art Jarrett

Eddy, one of America's outstanding concert baritones. Included in the song numbers are "Let's Go Bavarian," "Hedge Ho" and

"Everything I Have is Yours" by

Burton Lane and Barole Adamson;

"That's the Rhythm of the Day"

by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz

Hart; and "Dancing Lady" by

Jimmy McHugh and Dorothy

Fields.

JAPAN'S REAL NAME

That Japan should be called

"Nippon" universally, in accordance with her original title, was the subject of motions recently presented by members of the Seiyukai and the Minseitō to the House of Representatives.

It was reasoned in the explanations for the motions, that, while the proper name for this country is unquestionably "Nippon" different names have been used within this country and abroad, such as

Nihon, Nippon, Japan, Japon, and so forth, and so forth, and such habit greatly impedes the promotion of national spirit.

MYRNA LOY IN NEW ROLE

Maer Baer As Leading Man

Of interest in connection with the showing of "The Prizefighter and the Lady" due on Wednesday at the Queen's, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of the prize ring, is the fact that the picture marks Myrna Loy's first singing appearance before the camera and microphone.

With the exception of a brief sequence in "Love Me To-night" in which she hummed a tune, the glamorous Miss Loy, has never before had a singing role in pictures. She has studied and been interested in vocal work since she was a small girl in school and at last she has an opportunity to reveal her talent to her many film fans.

In "The Prizefighter and the Lady" Miss Loy plays a night-club

AT THE KING'S

Flying Down To Rio

Good, light entertainment. That is the best way of describing the current attraction at the King's Theatre, "Flying Down To Rio," which features Dolores Del Rio in the principal role with a supporting cast which includes Gene Raymond, Raul Roulien, Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire.

All the elements of gaiety are to be found in this picture. Songs, music, dancing—girls and romance. The story is simple enough, but at the same time it proves to be a suitable vehicle for the many excellent song numbers and dances that are included in the film.

Nor is the entertainment confined to songs and dances, for some of the wit and humour which the film contains is very clever indeed. Dancing on the wings of an aeroplane, with acrobats hurling the dancers from one plane to another is one of the many thrilling and unusual sights to be seen.

A musical show in mid air is a novel idea enough and in talking pictures such a theme provides for very many attractive items. It must be mentioned also that more than 200 girls appear in the various scenes of this film.

The cartoon which precedes the main picture is quite a clever and amusing one and the programme on the whole is very acceptable.

Around the Courts

ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF OPIUM

Young Chinese Fined.

A young Chinese named Hui Sao, described as a shop foki, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate on Saturday morning, charged with unlawful possession of two tael of unprepared opium.

It was stated by a Chinese detective that the defendant was arrested near the Sai Kung Street, Yau-mat, with the raw opium tied up in a piece of oil-paper round his waist. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $54 or one month hard labour in default.

AT THE MARINE COURT

Leaving Port Without a Clearance.

Leung Shing, coxswain of the steam launch Sun Tung On, appeared before Commander Hole at the Marine Court on Saturday morning, charged with (a) leaving port without a clearance or permit from the Harbour Master and (b) failing to produce a boat licence when requested by the Water Police.

The defendant pleaded guilty to both charges and told the Court that the boat licence was taken away from him by one of his foks by mistake. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $50 or six weeks hard labour on the first charge and another of $10 or one week on the second.

BANISHEE RETURNS

Caught Begging in Queen's Road

Before Mr. Ballour at Central Police Court on Saturday, a Chinese named Chung See was charged with unlawfully begging in Queen's Road Central, and committing a breach of his Deportation Order. The defendant pleaded not guilty and said that he was only strolling in Queen's Road Central and did not beg from any pedestrians for money at all.

Evidence was then given by the prosecuting officer that the defendant was banished from the Colony in 1932. His Worship, however, dismissed the first charge with a caution and imposed a sentence of six months' hard labour on the second count.

"Chocolate House" Wins the Championship

Thanks to the brilliant efforts of Miss P. Hamblin, who won the Victor Ludorum, "Chocolate House" captured the Inter-House championship comfortably from the "Red House" at the annual athletic sports of the Central British School, which were held at King's Park on Saturday. C. Bander won the Victor Ludorum.

Good racing, close finishes and keen competition were the order of the day, and as the Headmaster, Mr. J. Ralston remarked, everyone had enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

In asking his wife to present the prizes, Mr. Ralston said that he felt sure that, like himself, everyone had enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. Oscar Wilde had once imparted an opinion in "Ironical vein of those who taught others, but he would assure the parents present that it was on occasions like this that teachers were compensated.

The success of the day's sports, he said, had been due, in a great extent, to the friends of the School, Mr. E. Cock and Mr. Jenner of the Kowloon Docks, Major Mannes of the Kowloon Football Club, and two special friends of the school who had presented Challenge Cups.

SACRED SWORD
OF THE
ROMANOVReported To Have
Been Found

According to a German paper, the "Sacred Sword of the Romanovs" has just been discovered in Leningrad, an item of the Russian crown jewels which was missing when they were confiscated by the Bolsheviks after the Revolution.

Although the Soviet expert authorities sought for it everywhere, it was not to be found. Last month, the Winter Palace was being overhauled, and behind one of the walls the workers found an iron box, locked and sealed with the private seal of the last Tsar, Nicholas II. Inside the box was the missing sword in all its brilliance. A piece of paper lay beside it with the words: "The sacred sword of the Romanovs shall not fall into the hands of the enemy."

The weapon dates from the time of the famous Ruriks. It is an old Cossack sword with thirty-six large valuable diamonds in the hilt, which bears the inscription, "For Tsar, Fatherland, and Faith." The last Tsar rarely wore it.

The Soviet Government, it is stated, will sell the sword, if possible. It now has a place in the Museum of the Revolution.

MISSING LAD
FOUNDOn Roof Of Own
House

George Goldin, the 14-year old son of Mr. C. Goldin, the manager of Star Theatre, who was reported missing last Friday, was found by his mother on the roof of his own house, No. 9, Look Road, Kowloon at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The lad disappeared from La Salle College, and we learn that he spent his daytime wandering in Yau-mat, and slept in the roof of his own house at night.

He had been missing on several previous occasions. On the last occasion he disappeared for several months and was later found in Canton. He returned to the Colony about six weeks ago.

DARING ARMED
ROBBERYMoney-Changer
Held Up

Four men, two armed with revolvers, robbed a money-changer and rice shop at 109, Ki Lung Street, Shamshuipo at 7.30 last evening, and detamped with $250 in money.

According to a police report, one of the armed men asked the money-changer, Keung Sui Lin, to change some money. The money-changer enquired of the visitor how much he wanted to change, and the latter then pulled out a revolver and drove the victim to the rear cubicle. One other armed man then came into the shop and stood guard, while the other two went behind the counter and took $250 in money.

CARNEGIE TRUST
AND RESEARCHMore Students Taking
Salaried Posts

An encouraging statement regarding the lifting of the industrial depression was made in the annual report of the executive committee of the Carnegie Trust for the Universities of Scotland, submitted to the trustees at a meeting in London yesterday.

"It is a matter of common knowledge," the report stated, "that for some years past the flow from research to university and industrial posts had diminished. It is, therefore, significant that since the awards were initiated last July designations on account of appointment to salaried posts have again become numerous. It would be premature to infer from this circumstance that the end of the depression is in sight, but the general impression that it has lifted considerably, so far as this country is concerned, is supported by the fact mentioned above."

In regard to the scheme of post-graduate study and research, the committee pointed out that the problem of the trust had not been to find suitable and well-qualified applicants, but to find sufficient means to finance them in their investigations. Had more funds been available there would have been no difficulty in adding to the number, which had nevertheless been no fewer than 569 for the "sixth" period, an increase of 91 compared with the fifth.

In order that the amount available should meet the requirements of the situation, the committee were compelled to reduce the value of the awards for 1932-33. The stipends of fellows were lowered from £300 to £250; of senior scholars from £200 to £175; and of scholars from £175 to £150 for 1933-34. The committee had now found it necessary to place all scholarships on the uniform level of £150, and even on that basis only those with the highest qualifications could hope to receive awards.

PRIME MINISTER ELECTED

A total of 1,162 individuals had been engaged in original investigation under the scheme, in one or more of its branches, since its institution. The subsequent careers of scholars and fellows had been of varied character, and included appointments to university posts ranging from assistants to principals of universities and colleges at home and abroad, appointments in the scholastic world, in industrial research, in Government scientific service, and in medical research.

The expenditure had reached a gross total of £250,772 for a period of 30 years. Under the heading of assistance to students the number of beneficiaries for 1932-33 was 4,234, and the assistance in payment of class fees totalled £57,529.

Sir James Barrie was among the trustees present at the meeting over which Lord Sands presided. The Prime Minister was elected a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. W. Graham.

The Chairman said there were far more applications for organic chemistry than for anything else. The two things which seemed to appeal most to students were the infinitely great, the universe. They were confining their system of part payment of the fees to students whose circumstances called for assistance, and the payment of full fees to the necessitous. A large number of their beneficiaries received no assistance from the country authorities.

"OLSEN'S BIG MOMENT"El Brendel Here
Again

El Brendel, premier Swedish comedian of the screen appearing in "Olsen's Big Moment," Fox Film's latest comedy release, comes to the King's Theatre on Thursday. Playing the role of a janitor of an apartment house who takes a hand at patching-up romances, El Brendel is said to be given ample opportunities to supply his audience with laughs. Walter Catlett who has long been known for his comedy roles, plays the part of the drunk. With two such stellar comedians in one picture, "Olsen's Big Moment" gives promise of being a laugh riot.

As a janitor in a swank apartment house, Brendel finds it hard to get away for his night out. On another floor in the same house, a society matron is trying to persuade her daughter to marry Walter Catlett, a wealthy bachelor. The daughter refuses, on the ground that she loves someone else. Brendel is unfortunately forced into patching up the romance. In his endeavors to do the right thing, he finds himself wound up in a series of complications that eventually get him into trouble. Brendel however manages to bring

TREATMENT IN PNEUMONIASuccess In Young
Patients

The difficulties of assessing the value of a particular method of treatment are well illustrated in the case of the serum treatment of pneumonia, and the Therapeutics Trials Committee of the Medical Research Council must be congratulated on the report issued last week to the Medical Press.

Work at four centres, Aberdeen, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and London, is summarised, and the carefully controlled nature of the investigation indicates that the results can be accepted as a true indication of the value of serum. As is already known, following the great development of similar work in the United States, the modern concentrated serum for pneumonia is only available for this disease when it is due to special types of the pneumococcus microbe, ascertained as quickly as possible after the onset of the malady by examination of the sputum.

In the present investigation cases of lobar pneumonia were treated with serum in institutions where other patients (generally alternate admissions) were receiving exactly the same treatment in every other detail except for the serum.

Cases admitted longer than five days after the onset of the disease, or dying within twenty-four hours of admission, were not included in the results, which were also restricted to patients between twenty and sixty years of age. From over 1,300 cases of pneumonia in the four centres which have been studied, only 348 were finally treated by serum, and it is from this figure that the results have been analysed.

It is clearly shown that between the ages of twenty and forty definite lowering of the fatality rates was effected by the serum, to an extent of about half the "expected" deaths, from a comparison with patients not receiving serum. Between forty and sixty years of age this effect was not observed. Among the survivors the duration of the illness, especially of the fever, was less among those receiving serum, while the occurrence of empyema (fluid in the chest) was less often found in these patients.

It is calculated from the present series that two-thirds of all cases of lobar pneumonia in Great Britain belong to types suitable for treatment by the sera now available, but it is emphasised in the report that serum can only be successful in these special types. It is too costly, and carries certain disadvantages with it which preclude its use as a harmless measure for every case on the off-chance of its doing good.

The serum has to be injected into a vein, sometimes repeatedly, and the possibility of severe reactions is not remote. The present investigation has shown convincingly the value of serum in certain types of pneumonia, which, although not so high as the earlier enthusiasts believed, is certainly not to be despised.

FISHING BOATS SUNK

On Account Of Sudden Squall

According to a Canton vernacular paper, it is reported, that in the early morning of last Saturday, two large fishing-boats the "Kung Yuen-Tai" and the "Shun Hing Loong" both left Wai Yang District for a fishing trip.

While they were just leaving the Ping Hai Harbour, a sudden squall arose and blew directly towards these boats. Seeing the approaching squall, the boatmasters immediately dropped anchors in order to save their boats from being capsized, but on account of the velocity of the wind, the chains of both anchors snapped. The boats then got out of control and soon sunk.

All the crews on board the boats were thrown into the water and were carried away by the currents, except a few of those, who were able to swim, and who managed to reach the shore.

Nearly fifteen persons are believed to have been drowned, and the total loss is about $20,000.

about a happy ending to the entire affair.

It is reported that Brendel, who has long been known for his Scandinavian antics, plays a role that is far more important than any of his previous endeavors. He was last seen in "My Lips Betray" with Lillian Harvey and John Boles. Walter Catlett heads the cast, which includes Barbara Weeks and Susan Fleming last seen as two of the beauties in "My Weakness." The remaining members of the cast are: John Airdge, Mabel Turner, Edward Paley and Joseph Sauters. The picture was directed by Malcolm St. Clair from the story by George Marshall. Henry Johnson and James Tynan adapted the story for the screen.

GOLD AT MONTE CARLO AFTER
20 YEARSSpecial Training For
Croupiers

Gold coins are to appear on the gaming tables at Monte Carlo tomorrow evening, after an interval of twenty years. It is believed that this will add glamour to the famous salons and increase their attraction both to professional gamblers and Riviera holiday visitors.

For many weeks croupiers have been undergoing intensive training in handling the coins with the same amazing speed and accuracy with which they distribute—and more frequently collect—the chips and plaques representing sums of from 5,000 to 100,000 francs (about £1,250 at par).

A large gold reserve, the extent of which is not disclosed, has been kept in strong-rooms for many months past in Paris, and has now been transferred to Monte Carlo. It consists of American $5, 10 and 20-dollar pieces. Eventually Monegasque coins, similar to those in use before the war, will be used. It is hoped, put at present the French Government Mint, working overtime on its own new coinage, could not guarantee delivery before the end of the Riviera season.

At first the gold coins will be used on two of the principal tables in the International Sporting Club, but gold will shortly be seen also in the salons privées of the Casino. The Casino is stated to have in hand already gold to the value of 10,000,000 francs (about £125,000 at par).

Small Premium

The purchases of gold will be effected by first buying special exchangeable jetons. A small premium will be charged, 1,000 francs being, it is said, the price of gold to the nominal value of 1,000 francs, making the premium about 15s at par.

The most elaborate precautions are being taken against the possible advent of international crooks. There is no temptation to steal a chip, which has no intrinsic value, and, in the case of the larger amounts, is numbered and not negotiable. But gold is another matter.

Visitors to Monte Carlo have no idea of the remarkable organisation, which already exists for their protection.

Not long ago a telephone message from a detective notified headquarters that a notorious criminal had been seen crossing the frontier by car. Within an hour he had been traced to one of the leading hotels, and from there to the Casino, where he was in the act of taking out a membership ticket. Half an hour later he had been expelled from the Principality. The regulations for the admission of visitors are now being made even stricter.

Elaborate Precautions

There are other precautions in case a criminal does contrive to get in. Visitors will have noticed in the centre of each table in the gaming-rooms a metal compartment built into the table itself, and used for banknotes which have been exchanged for chips. It is, however, not generally known that these boxes have special sliding steel lids, which at the first alarm of suspicion can be instantly closed by the croupier pressing his foot on a mechanical device under the table.

That the apparatus works with lightning speed is vouched for by at least one attendant, who some time ago lost the tips of two fingers on the occasion of a test alarm being given. The Casino and the Sporting Club contain many other electrical devices for the protection of the immense amounts of money which circulate in the rooms.

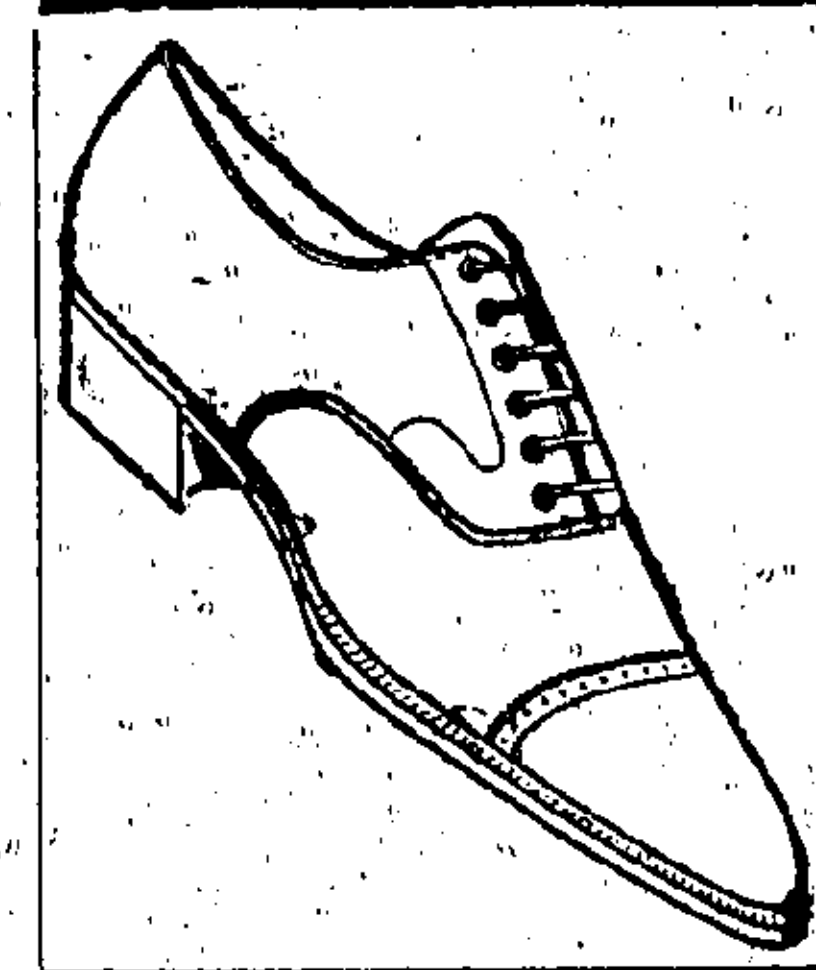

BANKRUPTCY
PETITIONPartner Bears
Brunt

The collapse of several Chinese native Banks in October last, following a run by the creditors, was recalled at Bankruptcy proceedings at the Supreme Court on Saturday, when the adjourned public examination of Mr. Pui Hui Cho, managing partner of the Shun Loong and Cheung Loong Bank was concluded before Mr. Justice A. D. A. MacGregor.

Witness said that all the other officials of the two Banks absconded, leaving him to bear the brunt of the liabilities.

A petition made by Wong Cho, trading as the Nam Kwong Brothers' Handkerchief and Garter Company, was dismissed, but petitions by the Kowloon Silk Store and the Butterfly Piece Goods and Silk Store were granted.

DICTATORSHIP OR DEMOCRACY

At the present time it is becoming the fashion for superior persons and politicians to sneer at democracy. "As for Democracy," said Alcibiades towards the end of the Peloponnesian War, "why should we discuss acknowledged madness?" The young Alcibiades of our age gibe at democracy as a form of government in similar terms. Only the other day one of the leading monthly journals in London threw out a few hints to the effect that "there is no folly more fashionable than the saying that the British will never tolerate a dictatorship." Under constitutional forms of a very flimsy character the English have invariably insisted on being governed either by a close oligarchy or a vital dictatorship. Unless Parliament under universal franchise can fulfil the indispensable task of leadership, a dictatorship is not only inevitable but necessary. Then in France and in the United States, also the very citadel of democracy, there have been a good deal of grumbling in the strain that democratic governments are not democratic enough. It is commonly assumed that in every social and political change that occurs in any country the natural policy is not considered as workable unless it is patterned after dictatorship. In certain quarters it is asserted "that Mr. Roosevelt's 'New Deal' is nothing other than the first stage of an American movement toward dictatorship."

In face of the whole world being in such a state of hysteria, brought about obviously by the harassing uncertainty of the depression, it is perhaps worth while to pause for a moment to consider this serious disillusionment about democracy.

Before the War, the prevailing opinion was that democracy could almost be regarded as the only possible government for a modern civilised country. But to-day the estimation of democracy has dropped to the lowest depth. If anything, democracy to-day is looked upon as adjusting itself clumsily and inadequately to new conditions of the time. And the democratic form of Government is thus imperilled because the nervous strain of the World War has given rise to some strange attempts to suppress or reform some of the most fundamental attitudes of mankind. On the one hand Russia is trying to destroy the classical "economic man" and on the other several other European countries want to cripple the "political animal" of Aristotle.

These repeated attempts to deprive the voting majority of the political-economic rights have decidedly resulted from the abnormal and pathological phase of wartime, when Europe witnessed the summary way in which the political, economic and social organisations were brought under the control of one man. Subsequently, the post-war conditions found the younger set of leaders so impatient of the methods of reconstructing the shattered world in the hands of the hoary-headed statesmen that they lost no time to create in the mass the same habit of discipline and regimentation as resorted to during the War. These young leaders being products of the War, have without a doubt learned one lesson well, namely the art of mastering and regimenting crowds. Politically this is an entirely new type of tyranny which for the first time in history exploits the mob spirit in an era of universal suffrage and gives to the supreme leaders, powers as limitless as that of the modern state.

One has no quarrel with any people who wish to pin faith to such political form, but the doctrine thus imposed by coercion rather than persuasion hardly suits

RELEASE OF KOREAN

Hunger Striker In Gaol

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, March 11.
Having gained his freedom by hunger strike, Poh Yi Yat, the Korean who was detained at the French Municipal Gaol in Shamen at the instance of the Japanese Consul General, Mr. S. Kawagoye, to-day moved away from his house at Fook Yam Chuen to another secluded place where his freedom is not likely to be endangered again by unlawful arrest.

Mr. Poh's release was announced in a brief communique issued by the Canton Municipal Government which stated that the French Consular authorities set free the Korean and escorted him to the foot of East Bridge where he stepped on Chinese soil and that the City Government was duly informed of his discharge.

The Korean claims that he is a naturalised Chinese citizen, having taken his naturalisation papers from Kiangsu District Court at Shanghai. This view was espoused by the Canton City Government who demanded both the French and Japanese consular authorities the immediate release of the prisoner. Poh was taken against his will to the Japanese Consulate General on October 13 last year, but since the Consulate is located at the French Concession he had to be handed over to the French Police.

Consul General Kawagoye insisted that Poh is still a Korean and should be tried by the Japanese court for his alleged Communist and other activities in Canton. On the other hand, Mayor Liu Chi Wen contended that Poh is a Chinese national and that Poh's removal from his home in Tung-shan to Shamen was illegal from the beginning.

While in the French gaol, Poh went on hunger strike and was at one time in a critical condition. Monsieur M. H. Bohnafous, French Consul General, ordered the release of the prisoner on the ground that only the French have police power in the French Concession and that the "arrest" of Poh by the Japanese is untenable.

the temperament of democratic countries like Great Britain, the United States and France. Not that these countries think that their democracies are all perfect. On the contrary, the existing democratic governments of these countries may show many defects and the people may have found in them a great deal to grumble at. Nevertheless democratic Great Britain, America and France may not succumb so easily to dictatorship and throw into the scrap heap, over night, their heritage.

When all is said and done the business of politics is to uphold a certain standard and manner of life by coupling liberty with discipline. The function of a Government, in order words, may be likened to the aim of traffic control and regulation. It is not to tell the people where they are to go, but the primary object is to enable individuals to go more efficiently and freely where they want to go.

If Gossip We Must

By "Prudence"

The annual horticultural show last Wednesday proved a great attraction. This year it aroused more interest than ever. If one may judge by the number of cars parked in the vicinity they reached right round the C.S.O. to the entrance of Volunteer Headquarters!

The unseasonable weather had caused anxiety to local gardeners but, why worry....since it is well known that Chinese Fah-wongs can triumph over almost every difficulty. Despite the handicap of drought, followed by sudden rain and cold, there were some gorgeous plants on view.

Very interesting were the small pear and apple trees sent in by Mr. Bagram, and his rhododendrons were another novelty. Lady Peel showed some exquisite blooms. That dark-damask rose of hers seemed to hold the breath of England in its petals, and the pansies were enchanting. She herself took a great interest in the exhibits and went round the stands most thoroughly. Her enthusiasm for gardening has been a great incentive to all the flower-lovers in the Colony.

DAHLIAS.
Another specially beautiful exhibit was the stand of dahlias sent by Lady Southern. Their marvellous colours and the perfection of every bloom gained an easy first prize.

Mrs. Wellington's "Thebana" was quite unique in its way. It seems a pity that so few people understand this fascinating art of Japanese flower-arrangement.

Pots of violets from Kowloon were lovely too....but only what one expects from the U.S.R.C. which has the reputation for having the best kept garden on the Mainland.

The mignonette of Mrs. Ho-Kom-tong made me feel quite homesick. Nothing brings the charm of an English garden so vividly before one as the unexpected scent of that sweet old-fashioned plant.

I was so lost in flower-gazing that I missed a good many pretty frocks....but certainly confirmed my opinion that picture-hats have come to stay. I loved the graceful clinging costume worn by Lady Peel and thought the black hat which completed it, a charming example of this new fashion.

Mrs. G. D. R. Black looked extremely smart in "magnolia" with a white flower in her buttonhole. Mrs. Prior looked charming in dark red and Mrs. Franklin wore a red hat with her gray-blue suit.

Mrs. George Tinson also had a note of red with her check costume, and had reason to feel proud of her pots of nemesia. Mrs. Martel Hall was examining the hellbore with much interest and blended with it marvellously as she was all in pale gray with a narrow border of gray fur at the neck. Mrs. Harry Owen Hughes had a very captivating coat-frock, with huge buttons and a green and brown collar. Mrs. Way was delightful in cinnamon-brown. Her little daughter Elizabeth was with her....such a lovely child with her blue eyes flaxen hair and delicate complexion.

CHILDREN AND FLOWERS.

It is very nice to see the interest that children take in the flower-show. Pretty Joan Newhouse was happily admiring the ivory-and-coral effect of her mother's prize exhibit of turnips and tomatoes. Little Evelyn Buyers was lost in admiration of the pansies and busy choosing her favourites among the "vases of sweet peas." Vera and Elizabeth Black looked rather like flowers themselves when they wandered among the tall blooms. Mrs. Emmet, all in brown, was with

Mrs. Sanger who wore an artistic shade of bois-de-rose and brought her two little girls. She must have felt rather proud of them, since both won prizes. I fancy that Eleanor was the youngest exhibitor, for she is barely four years old and deserves much praise for her prettily arranged basket.

Mrs. Peter Grist looked awfully pretty in blue and gray, and Mrs. Edgar Davidson very chic in navy and white.

It is very nice to see Mrs. Butcher back again after a short holiday at home. She had to leave her little daughter Pearl behind at school this time. Mrs. Borret undertook no light task when she kindly consented to "present" the prizes. The long table was laden with massive silver cups and charming souvenirs of every description. All of them prizes well worth the winning, and there was a great deal of applause as the victors went up to receive their trophies.

WOLF-CUB RALLY.
The Wolf-Cub Packs of the Colony held a most interesting Rally in the Compound of St. Andrews Church on Saturday last, when the following packs took part, assisted by the Deep Sea Scouts of the China Fleet Troop.

1st H.K. St. Joseph's College.
Mr. Lim Kim Huen
2nd H.K. R. C. Cathedral.

4th H.K. Murray (Garrison).

11th K. Kowloon Tong Anglican Church.
Mrs. C. B. Easterbrook
Numbers of parents, friends, and small brothers and sisters watched the display, which included races, signalling, sports, and some quaint Jungle Dances.

As everyone knows, it is Rudyard Kipling's wonderful "Jungle Books" (with their wealth of jungle-lore) which forms the basis of cub-training, and special praise is due to the Kowloon Packs for their realistic performance of "Bagheera's Dance" and to the Hongkong Packs, for the amusing "Dance of Kaa" in which the 11th Pack (led by Jimmy Tracy) gave a really excellent performance as the snake who swallowed the terrified but fascinated "Banderlog." No wonder that "Kaa" sank into heavy slumber at the end....after swallowing twenty-three fat little "monkeys."

SHEER KHAN.
The most effective dance of all was the "Death of Sheer Khan" given by the Peak Pack. The leader, (Little Leslie Womack) shewed keen dramatic feeling as he mounted the "council rock" and flung up his arms to declaim that "Sheer Khan" was dead.

Another striking feature was the wonderful "Howl" given by Clifton Large, of St. Andrews Pack....when all the cubs of the Colony crept stealthily into the compound and formed a huge circle, while their leader, as "Lone Wolf" in the centre, gave tongue in true Wolf-Cub style.

The games and dances were delightfully explained to the audience by the Rev. G. T. Waldergrave the Scout Commissioner, and the display culminated in the winning of the Totem Pole by St. Andrew's Pack with the Peak pack as a close second, after which a delicious tea (kindly arranged by Mrs. Easterbrook) was served to Cubs and visitors. Among the large audience we noticed "The Bishop" of Victoria and Mrs. Owen Hall with their little daughter "Judy," Mr. and Mrs. R. Young and Graeme, Mr. and Mrs. Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. Sverre Berg, Mr. Oscar Eager and his little daughter Jill. Mrs. Emmet, Mrs. Tracy and Helen, Mrs. Nicol and Hamish, Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. Franklin and Sylvia, and Jane Strellett Mr. de Ville and Mr. Womack; Mr. and Mrs. Booth the Rev. W. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers Mrs. Baines, Mrs. Easterbrook and Mrs. Denys Reiss, and these were only a few of the large and enthusiastic crowd of onlookers.

THE RACES—A RETROSPECT.

Now that the Annual meeting is over, the public certainly owe a sense of gratitude to the owners who put up so much good sport for them to enjoy and gamble on. Owners will be making up their books if they have not already done so and it is feared that few, if any, will come out on the right side.

One cannot help sympathising with owners who have nothing but the pari-mutuel to pay their horses expenses out of. I exclude the stakes as in most cases these are spent by the owners' friends a few hours after he has won a race, and it is extraordinary how many friends an owner has when the corks begin to fly. If an owner's horse is the favourite for a race he may get 10 cents back for his $5 ticket and it gives one quite a headache to calculate how many $5 tickets he will have to take to pay for his horse's feed bill.

The launching ceremony of H.M.S. Robin last Wednesday attracted many of the fair sex. Guests are seen leaving the platform after the good ship had been christened by Mrs. Elliot.

This betting "blind" as one might call it sets even the ordinary punters a bit of a problem, but to the owner it must be a serious matter. One does not know how many tickets are taken on each horse or the total number of tickets taken till after the race is won or lost as the case may be. This savours rather of "closing the stable after the horse has been taken out."

We know that the electric totalisator equipment is a very expensive affair and a scarcely justifiable expenditure for our local Jockey Club, but surely something can be done. Over 20 years ago in Calcutta the names of the horses, the number of tickets on each, and the total number was written on two black boards similar to a cricket telegraph and hoisted in a conspicuous place.

The work was continuous before a race, and as one board was hoisted the other was corrected up.

A little organisation is necessary in the pari-mutuel room and possibly a telephone installed in a pit to the front of the lawn or close to where the band at present plays. The expense would be small and one does not suggest that this is "fool proof" but it would certainly give one an indication of how things were going on and frequently some very nice odds might be picked up on outsiders. To our mind anything is better than "blind betting" and should give our generous owners a chance.

"TWILIGHT IN THE FORBIDDEN CITY"

Startling Disclosures In Sir Reginald Johnson's Book

London, March 10. That the Manchurian independence movement culminating in Mr. Henry Pu Yi's enthronement is in no wise due to Japan intervention but purely a Chinese and Manchurian act dating at least to 1923 when Tsang Tso Lin tried to reinstate the Emperor in Manchuria is startlingly demonstrated by Sir Reginald Johnson's "Twilight in the Forbidden City" dealing with his five years as Mr. Pu Yi's tutor. The book will be published on Monday.

Sir Reginald had also learned from Tsang Tso Lin himself that the Manchus could have refused to abdicate in 1912 and merely transferred the throne to Manchuria.

The book throws important light on the characters of the Empress Dowager, Kuang Hsu, Pu Yi, Yuan Shih Kai, and on many dramatic events, and secret intrigues in the Forbidden City of which the author's unique position has made him a personal witness. —Reuter.

DISARMAMENT MEMORANDUM

France Considering Reply

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Paris, March 11. A semi-official announcement just made states that the French note on the British Disarmament memorandum is not expected for several days. Neither on Monday nor Tuesday will the Cabinet consider the question.

In the coming week the Supreme Council will hold a plenary session when the technical aspect of the question will be considered.

The "Paris Sol" admits that this meeting will be convened before Wednesday. This is, however, contradicted by a semi-official statement which interprets certain utterances by M. Barthou to mean that the Defence Council would not meet for at least a fortnight. —Transocean Kuo Min.

SECURITY OF FRANCE

Reorganisation Of Defences

Paris, March 10. France is to launch a re-organisation and re-equipment programme for the defence forces, at a cost of £27,000,000, for which a special expenditure account will be tabled by the Government.

The Minister of War is authorised to spend over £14,000,000 for the completion of frontier defences in 1934 and 1935, while the Minister of Marine will devote 1,500,000,000 francs to the construction of liquid fuel depots and coastal defences.

The Air Ministry will be allotted 11,625,000 francs for the equipment of the air force, on the principle of quality rather than quantity, and a first line air fleet, ready for action at any moment, will be built. —Reuter.

JUDGE PRINCE'S ASSAILANT

Identity Still A Riddle

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Paris, March 10. The riddle of the identity of Judge Prince's murderer and the exact connection of foul play with the Stavisky case is cleared up, according to the newspaper "Liberte," by a telegram received by the prosecutor-general from the State-Attorney at Dijon—the place of the murder. Since the sensational telegram, however, according to "Liberte" reports was received in code and the statement to the Press from the Prosecutor General has not yet been received, the riddle would seem to have suffered merely a change of venue. —Transocean Kuo Min.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

French and Belgian Ministers

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, March 11. M. Barthou, the Foreign Minister, received the Belgian Ambassador on Saturday morning. Considering the recent utterances by the Belgian Premier before the Belgian Senate, this meeting between Barthou and the Ambassador is considered to be of great importance.

In political circles in Paris, it is admitted openly that the remarks made by Court de Broqueville, the Belgian Premier, created an embarrassing impression and opened the way for "tendentious comment." Happily, it is said, it was subsequently officially denied from Brussels that the Belgian Premier had made his startling utterances, after having consulted both London and Paris.

The visit of the Belgian Ambassador to M. Barthou is considered to have contributed greatly towards the disarmament problem. —Transocean Kuo Min.

BUILDINGS IN LONDON

Increasing Height Criticised

London, March 8. The tendency to erect higher buildings in London is the subject of criticism in the report of the Royal Fine Art Commission which by Royal Warrant of last year was empowered to call attention to any project or development which in the opinion of the Commission might appear to affect the amenities of a national or public character.

The Commission now state that the effect of some of these tall buildings upon other places of national and historic interest has in many cases been detrimental. In particular it refers to the buildings recently erected in the neighbourhood of St. Paul's Cathedral, distant views of which have been blocked by newly erected structures. The maximum height of buildings in London has recently been increased to 100 feet. The Commission points out that the increase in height is a concession of which money value is often great and it is suggested that any such concession should be accompanied by some advantage to the public of light, air, or of amenity by surrendering the frontage for road widening or by setting back the faces of buildings in order to provide a wide angle of light. —British Wireless.

TREASURY BILLS

London, March 9. The total amount applied for in Treasury bills to-day was £69,675,000. The amount allotted for bills at three months was £38,875,000. Average rate per cent. 18/0.777 as compared with 18/4.75d last week. —British Wireless.

L.C.C. ELECTIONS

Labour Party's Majority

The final results of the London County Council elections were declared to-day. The Labour Party has secured a majority of 14 over the Municipal Reformers which is the only other party represented on the new Council. This is the first time Labour have been in majority in the County Council. The final figures are Labour 69, Municipal Reformers 55. Labour gains numbers 35 and losses one. Municipal Reformers gained one seat and lost 20. Liberals lost six seats. 328 per cent of the electorate was voted. At the 1931 election 27.8% was polled.

The Leader of the Labour Party in London, Mr. Herbert Morrison, in a statement to the press said the real changes of policy would inevitably take place, and he was anxious that the direction of the Council's policy should be clear out. He was confident the integrity of its administration would be fully safeguarded under Labour control, and that the Council would be animated by the highest spirit of public responsibility and public service. He indicated that a large scale programme of housing and slum clearance would engage the earliest attention of the Council. —British Wireless.

NAZIS SENT TO PRISON

Kidnapped A Wealthy Jew

Berlin, Mar. 11. Seven Nazi Stormtroopers were sentenced to terms of three to six years' penal servitude on a charge of kidnapping a wealthy Jew manufacturer at Chemnitz and attempting to extort ransom.

The victim, Otto Schlesinger, was held up while motoring at Chemnitz. He was forced at the point of a revolver to enter a Nazi car and driven towards Berlin.

Schlesinger was allowed to send a telegram to his wife saying he was summoned to Berlin on urgent business, and he astutely signed the telegram with his surname. His wife concluded that something was wrong and telephoned to friends in Berlin who informed the police.

Schlesinger telephoned to a friend to stand with ransom of several thousand marks outside the Zoo Station. Nazis drove up with Schlesinger, received the envelope, released him and drove off pursued by a police car. They were captured after an exchange of shots with the police. —Reuter.

DISARMAMENT

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10. Criticising the French reply to the Allied Note on Disarmament the German Press puts forth the following arguments.

They complain that by the French contention it means that the National-Socialists storm detachments should be reckoned when determining the strength of the German Army. A semi-official organ points out that in this connection that France on her part is opposed to having her five million trained reserves included when determining her own military strength, although the French military experts have stressed time and again that these reserves constituted part of the French Army. Germany, moreover, has nothing to compare with the French reserves, the German soldiers of the World War being now at least 35 years of age and having never since been given military training. In France, however, every man fit for service has undergone military training, is called back to the service at regular intervals and full equipment is held ready for him in case of mobilisation. It is therefore only fair to ask for the five million reserves of the French army to be taken into account before an attempt is made to determine the value of the untrained and unarmed political soldiers of Germany. —Transocean Kuo Min.

FRANCE ON CONTROLLED REDUCTIONS

London, Mar. 9. The results of parallel and supplementary efforts of various states to advance the work of the Disarmament Conference in accordance with the recommendation of the Bureau on November 22 have been communicated to Mr. Arthur Henderson, the Chairman of Conference, and all material documents including British and Italian memoranda and a series of memoranda exchanged between France and Germany are published by the League of Nations.

In a covering letter of the communicating documents that have passed between France and Germany, M. Barthou, the French Foreign Minister, states that the French Government's view that a controlled reduction of armaments must take place down to the level which will enable an equality of rights to be realised in a system of security for all nations, and that effective guarantees of execution are indispensable.

It adds the following observations:—

1. That "Existence of formations which in spite of certain denials are incontestably of military character" must be taken into account in any calculation of effectiveness.

2. The French Government could not accept an immediate reduction of its armaments which would be accompanied by an immediate rearmament of qualitative character of powers bound by military clauses of treaties.

3. The question of guarantees of execution in case the provisions of the convention are violated is of special importance.

4. The present circumstances and more particularly increasing pace at which certain countries are continuing to rearm, in contravention of provisions of treaties, necessitate the rapid situation of the problem with competition. —British Wireless.

HOUSEWIVES' SCHEME

For Unemployment Problem

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10. An ingenious solution for the serious problem connected with the national fight against unemployment was announced by the Berlin Housewives' Association. Owing to stringent economies imposed on all housewives during the world economic crisis they have been compelled to dispose of the services of servant girls, who being unfitted for other work have swelled the ranks of the unemployed. The Housewives Association which numbers 100,000 members is making a special appeal to all concerns to assist in re-employing the servant girls and has laid down certain conditions. The girl must be provided with free accommodation, food and washing, and pocket money but is to receive no wages. A contract is being drawn up to safeguard the position of the servant girl. At the end of a year the girl would be examined to see how the system works and if their services are found satisfactory they will receive a certificate which implies preferential treatment towards a salaried job. It is contended this will also help the seriously overworked housewife. —Transocean Kuo Min.

ALFONSO WINS LAWSUIT

Recovery Of Securities

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

London, March 10. Ex-King Alfonso of Spain has just won a lawsuit against a London Bank to obtain some outstanding securities held by the bank valued at £11,000. The judgment ruled that securities must now be handed over to the ex-King in his private name. This decision is interesting and important not so much on account of the money involved but as a precedent given to a fundamental principle. Before the outbreak of the Spanish revolution the ex-King's Spanish bank made the transference of securities to the London Bank. The London agents refused to hand over the securities after the revolution, because they declared themselves responsible to the Spanish bank which itself was responsible to the Spanish Government who had declared all Royal property to be confiscated. —Transocean Kuo Min.

BERLIN SHARE MARKET

Prices Firm

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 8, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10. Although profit-taking was noticeable, prices on the Sharemarket continued firm, a number of rises being reported. This buoyant condition of the market is due to the successful renewal of the standstill agreement for short term credits with States and Municipalities, and the news that the Steeltrust have again engaged 1,000 more hands, making a total increase of 5,000 since last October.

The Fixed interest security market was somewhat neglected, the turnover being small with prices remaining firm. Call Money 4 3/8 and 5 3/8. Throughout the whole week the Berlin Bourse was exceptionally buoyant, both on the sharemarket and fixed interest securities market. Among the chief causes for the above was the success of the Leipzig Fair which surpassed all expectations both as regards display of merchandise, samples and engineering, and the stimulation given by the Berlin Motor Show. —Transocean Kuo Min.

GERMANY'S TRADE

Plea By Herr Schmidt

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Hamburg, March 10. A forcible plea for the expansion of Germany's overseas trade was made by the Reich Minister for Economy Herr Schmidt at the annual banquet of the German East Asiatic Society here on Saturday. Schmidt pointed out that the economic crisis in other countries could not compare with the distress in Germany as no other country was confronted with such materially and morally devastating proportions of unemployment as Germany. Only on this scale can the measures be judged which the National-Socialist Party have taken in order to bring about a Reich economic rehabilitation. The recent favourable development in the internal economic situation necessitates an increased import of raw materials. Our foreign suppliers must welcome these increased requirements at a moment like the present but this can only be maintained if they purchase our goods. It is the great task of our export trade to explain these conditions to the outside world, stressing the point that Germany cannot pay her debts so long as foreign countries do not import German goods. In the Far East, so the Reich Minister, continued, problems of political and economic nature were on the brink of a solution. The general political situation in many ways is not free from tension. But so far as we can see to-day the relation between those two States—both friendly to us—China and Japan seemed to be steering into calmer channels so that a gradual arrival at the satisfactory adjustment can be hoped for in questions still pending. We hope in the coming peaceful year it will be possible for German merchants and engineers to continue their energies in all parts of the Far East, and place themselves at the disposal of the accomplishments of the great new tasks that lie in the future. —Transocean Kuo Min.

U.S. PURCHASE OF SILVER

Instructions To Treasury

Washington, March 10. The House Coinage Committee has approved Bills authorising the Treasury to pay 25 per cent. above the market price for silver shipped to the United States in payment of exported agricultural commodities and purchase 1,500,000,000 ounces of silver at the market price. The purchase would be 150,000,000 ounces within the first four months after the passage of the Bill and an additional 250,000,000 ounces within one year, the purchases to cease if commodity prices reach the 1928 average. —Reuter.

SURPLUS IN THE BUDGET

Disposal Not Yet Decided

London, March 10. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, has not yet decided how to dispose of the expected Budget surplus.

This was made clear in his speech at Birmingham, last night, when he warned that there was no wisdom in coming to a final conclusion until it is certain that a surplus existed, and if so, the extent of its size.

He said that the distribution of "some part of such a hypothetical surplus" was a weighty problem into which many considerations entered.

He had, at present, not come to any conclusions.

Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to refer to the movement headed by the Archbishop of York for ensuring that the restoration of the cuts in unemployment relief would be given first consideration.

There was nobody who did not share the Archbishop's sympathy with the unemployed, he said, but when he read the letter which the Archbishop wrote to the press, urging those who agreed with him to write to their members of Parliament, he thought it a pity that the Archbishop should seem to imply that the members required a reminder for their humanitarian feelings.

"I regret also that he should have suggested that members are largely to be guided by the number of letters they receive rather than by their own judgment," Mr. Chamberlain added.—Reuter.

SALARY CUTS AND TAX REDUCTION

London, March 10. The prospect of a substantial surplus being realised at the end of the financial year which closes on March 31 has given rise to much conjecture regarding the proposals of the Budget which will be opened in the House of Commons next month. The restoration of cuts made in unemployment benefit and salaries of civil servants and reduction in taxation imposed to meet the 1931 crisis are principal objects to which it is suggested the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, should devote attention.

In a speech last night at Birmingham Mr. Chamberlain referred to the subject, remarking that an upright occupant of his office must give careful consideration to the various objects which might present themselves for distribution of some part of such hypothetical surplus in a way best fitted to advance the interests of the country with due regard to conducting claims and to relief to the various classes in the community. The problem, he said, was a weighty and complicated one into which many considerations, some of which were not yet even known to him, entered, and he had not up to the present come to any conclusions.—British Wireless.

DEPORTATION OF ALIEN SEAMEN

U.S. Respects Empire Opposition

Washington, Mar. 10. Owing to the protests of Canada, Great Britain and other European countries, the American State Department is opposing a private member's Bill now before Congress, dealing with the deportation of alien seamen.

The Department fear that the passing of the Bill will encourage retaliation against American shipping in foreign countries.—Reuter.

RUBBER RESTRICTION STATEMENT

Reports Sternly Denied

Amsterdam, Mar. 10. It is suggested in interested circles that an official statement in regard to rubber restriction is likely to be issued very shortly, simultaneously at the Hague and in London.

Enquiries made by "Reuter" in London have so far not confirmed the suggestion.—Reuter.

PARIS RIOTS ECHO

Explanation By Daladier

Paris, March 10. The idea of a "Red plot" which was the press interpretation of the statements made by the former Prefect in Paris, M. Chlappe, on Thursday, when giving evidence before the Paris Inquiry Commission investigating the February riots, was scouted by M. Daladier, when giving evidence before the Commission yesterday.

He declared that there was never any question of a plot by M. Prot. M. Chlappe, M. Daladier stated, mentioned to him that M. Prot, who was Minister for Interior in the Daladier Cabinet, intended to form a Government himself, but that was a legitimate ambition.

Dealing with the circumstances of M. Chlappe's removal from the Prefecture of Police, M. Daladier said that after a study of the Stavisky dossier he found nothing to smirch M. Chlappe's personal probity, but found a lack of activity which would have permitted the arrest of Stavisky in 1931, or anyhow, in 1933, and he concluded that new blood was necessary.

M. Daladier was subsequently dramatically confronted by M. Chlappe, who maintained that he told M. Daladier that M. Prot was building up a personal party, and that M. Daladier replied that he had not unlimited confidence in M. Prot and knew already what M. Chlappe had told him.

M. Daladier retorted that he had never heard M. Chlappe speak of M. Prot's activities exceeding his political and Parliamentary sphere.

He had the impression that M. Prot was preparing a Ministerial team, not a team of men determined to bring off a coup by force.

M. Chlappe maintained that a wealthy Cabinet member had been approached to provide funds to arm the "Red" forces.

M. Daladier replied that he did not remember M. Chlappe mentioning it.—Reuter.

Only a few hours earlier an Army mail-carrying plane crashed on a crash at Daytona Beach, at Chardon, Ohio, while another Florida. In both mishaps the pilots were killed.—Reuter.

LOCAL HOCKEY

H.K. Ladies Win Easily

Wrong tactics by the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' defence and the inability of their inside forwards to make headway, were the main factors which decided the game in favour of the Hongkong Ladies in their Caer Clark hockey encounter at Sookunpoo on Saturday, when the champions, emerged winners by five clear goals after an evenly contested first half.

The Hongkong Ladies played a better game at forward, where they adopted the short passing game, attacking in formation.

With the exception of Mrs. Read and O. Brown, the centre forward and left wing, respectively, of the "Y" Ladies, the rest of the forwards were weak and never in the picture at all.

J. Wilson, partnering A. Fowler in defence, lay much too near the half-way line, and instead of covering A. Fowler, was in a line with her with the result that when a ball was sent past the latter, the H.K. Ladies had only to contend with J. Weller in the "Y" goal.

The first half produced the best play, the H.K. Ladies getting very near to scoring on several occasions, but the brilliant display of A. Fowler in defence, coupled with E. Thompson's display at centre half kept out the invaders until 10 minutes from the interval, when the champions opened the scoring through J. Churchill.

Soon after Mrs. March scored the second goal.

In the second half the "Y" Ladies improved slightly at forward although the defence showed signs of tiring. J. Dalziel, scoring the H.K. Ladies' third soon after the resumption.

Ten minutes from time the H.K. Ladies swept through the "Y" defence to net two more goals from R. King and J. Dalziel.

The following were the teams:—H.K. Ladies:—M. Bird, E. M. Gray, B. Helbling, M. Wallace, B. Pope, M. K. Lowe, F. Marsh (1), J. Dalziel (2), E. Bonnar, J. Churchill (1), and R. King (1).

"Y" Ladies:—J. Weller, J. Wilson, A. Fowler, B. Blumenthal, E. Thompson, M. Gardner, V. Bradbury, R. Blackmore, M. Read, T. Dennis and O. Brown.

RADIO-BEAT NAVY

LOWER DECK

Awtar Singh, the Radio Sports Club's brilliant hockey centre-forward performed the "hat-trick" against the Navy lower deck who were defeated by three clear goals by the Radio at Caroline Hill on Saturday.

The game was by no means one-sided. Johnson, McKenna and Hetherington being outstanding for the Navy, while P. Singh, J. Singh and G. Singh were prominent for the winners.

ST. ANDREW'S LADIES WIN

Fleeting a much weakened team, the St. Andrew's Ladies were fully extended before they could repeat their previous Caer Clark cup victory over the Club de Recreio "A" Ladies at King's Park on Saturday by 2 goals to 1. They were a goal in arrears at the interval.

The Recreio Ladies put up a very fine display in the opening half, when they took the lead through A. Alves who netted, an excellent goal. The Recreio Ladies should have gone further ahead on several occasions, but over-eagerness robbed them of any further score.

In the second half the St. Andrew's Ladies found their true form, and gradually forced play from their half. P. Gittens equalising with a snap goal.

Soon after the St. Andrew's Ladies took the lead for the first time through M. Woolley, who converted in "characteristic" manner. From this point the Recreio were penned in their own half.

The Saints without the services of J. Wong at centre half, T. Woolley deputising, while A. Chubb filled the right half position vacated by the former.

The following were the teams:—Recreio "A":—B. D'Almada, M. Basto, C. Osmund, M. Remedios, M. Alves, L. Silva-Netto, L. Xavier, A. Alves, C. Silva, M. Rosa and B. Remedios.

On Wednesday the 14th and Saturday the 17th the Seven-a-side charity tournament will be held. Details of the draw and times of play will be available on Tuesday.

The Club and Hongkong Shanghai Bank annual fixture which usually winds up the regular season's programme produced the usual scrappy game. The final score was a goal and two tries (11 points) each and is a fair reflection of the run of the play.

Contrary to expectations the Bank pack were beaten both in the tight and loose scrums as well as the lineouts but were often dangerous in forward rushes. It would appear from the volume of noise emanating from the scrum that there were several scrum leaders or that the Bank pack were singing a team song! The Bank were better served behind the scrum. Robertson getting through an immense amount of work at scrum half and combining well with Turner. McGilchrist, who only arrived on the Ranchi on Thursday, played a brilliant game at centre three-quarter but unless he learns the first score of the game came when Meekie picked the ball up cleanly near the Bank line and throw himself over. McLeellan converted. Soon afterwards, the Bank scored when from a good movement McGilchrist touched down but Robertson could not convert. The Club again took up the attack and from a good heel Meekie passed to Hutchison who cut through and ran strongly passing to Harbord for the latter to score. McLeellan did not convert. At half time the Club were leading by 8 points to 3.

Soon after the resumption the Bank applied pressure and McGilchrist crossed-kicked and Moutrie following up scored near the posts for Robertson to add the extra points. With the score now equal both teams tried hard for score and the Bank soon afterwards scored a try through Lawson after a good three-quarter movement but Robertson did not convert.

The Club now fought back strongly and the forwards prominent with several rushes and eventually from a scrum on the Bank five yard line, the ball was cleanly heeled, and Hutchison scored a good try. McLeellan's kick just falling. From now until the final whistle both teams fought hard but there was no further scoring.

Although the game was scrappy from a spectators point of view it was hard-fought, out the forwards of both sides working hard.

For the Bank Bradford, Cumming and Burch were prominent, and in the Club, Jack McLeellan and Walkden both did well.

St. Joseph's In Strong Position

The struggle for the Senior championship still continue and by Saturday's results it appears to be very open. St. Joseph's F. C. strengthened their position by a two-goals win over the South Wales Borderers. The Lincoln's defeat by Kowloon on the Railway ground brings St. Joseph's to within one point of the leaders. There are several important matches remaining to be played and there may be several more upsets.

A very important match in on the cards for Sunday next when South China receive the Borderers at Caroline Hill.

Hongkong Club took full points from the Gunners by the odd goal in three and Recreio and Police played a goalless drawn match at King's Park, while South China defeated the Young Indians in the reply at Caroline Hill in Division II.

The R.E. defeated the Borderers at Sookunpoo by four goals to one in Division III.

Week-End League Games

Six League matches were played during the week-end, two in the Senior Division and four in the Junior.

Despite a good tinning of 103 by A. M. Rodrigues, the University, last year's champions were held to a draw by the Royal Navy, while the Army recorded their second win of the season at the expense of the Civil Service.

In the Junior Division which has already been won by the Indian R. C. Club de Relelo concluded their fixture by a big win over the Police, the Service Corps surprised Kowloon, the University defeated the Civil Service by a narrow margin of nine runs, and the Club overcame the Engineers.

FUNERAL OF DR. C. C. WU

Ceremony In
Canton

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, March 11.

The remains of Dr. C. C. Wu (Wu Chao Chu), member of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang and member of the South-west Political Council, who died in Hong Kong on January 2, were sent back here this morning for burial at Yat Mong Kong near the graveyard of his distinguished father, Dr. Wu Ting Fang, veteran Chinese statesman.

Obsequies for the late Dr. C. C. Wu were held at noon today at Yat Mong Kong, opposite the famous Yellow Flower Hill, and among those who paid the last respects to the deceased diplomat were Messrs. Tang Shao Yi, Teng Tse Ju, Chow Lu, Lin Yun Kai, General Chen Tsi Tong, Miao Pei Nan, Yu Han Mou and others.

The funeral procession began from the West Bund eastwards and then proceeded to the cemetery via Wing Hon Road and Wai Oi Road. A naval brass band led the way, and a long line of motor cars brought up the rear. The procession was flanked by motor-cycle policemen and gendarmes, and the casket was preceded by a detachment of troops with arms reversed.

Born 49 years ago, Dr. Wu received his middle school education at Atlantic High School in Atlantic City when his father was Minister to the United States, and later entered the University of London where he took the LL.B. degree with honours. In 1927 he was Minister of Foreign Affairs in Nanking, and two years later he became Chinese Minister to Washington.

In 1931, Dr. Wu refused to apply for American permits for the exportation of arms and ammunition to China on the ground that those weapons would be used by General Chiang Kai Shek against the Cantonese. He returned to Canton in the latter part of the same year and joined the then National Government here. In 1932 Dr. Wu was again urged to take up the portfolio of foreign affairs at Nanking but he declined and planned to go to Hainan Island to develop the industries there.

SURPLUS SUGAR DISPOSAL

Statement Causes
Apprehension

London, Mar. 11.

At the sugar meeting the Chadbourne group were apprehensive of the statement that it will be necessary to dispose of a certain surplus arising out of production from the Philippines during 1933/5 on the world market.

It was pointed out that under contemplated American legislation the surplus might be considerably reduced by imports to the United States before the quota is fixed. The Chadbourne said that in the event of a general agreement they could reach an agreement for distribution among themselves of the market remaining available. The only exception will be the Netherlands.—Reuter.

HABICHT RUMOURS

Munich, March 9.

Inspector of the Austrian National-Socialist Party Habicht in Munich papers refuted all rumours to the effect that he had ever been a member of the Communist Party. He emphasizes that he is a member of the National-Socialist Party since 1925 and has at all times been the strongest enemy of communism.—Transocean Kuo Min.

JEWISH FILM IN GERMANY

Berlin, March 9.

The president of the Reichsfilmkammer prohibited further performances of the film "Katharina II." produced by German Jewish Emigrants, on account of demonstrations of the population outside the cinema. The film could be shown only under strong protection of police. The leading role is played by Elisabeth Bergner.—Transocean Kuo Min.

CAPITAL OF QUEEN OF SHEBA

Paris, March 9.

The legendary capital of the Queen of Sheba has been discovered by the French author, Andre Malraux—winner of the Prix Goncourt last year—and Flight Capt. Cornillon, who crossed the Arabian desert in an airplane.

In a telegram to the newspaper, "Le Transigeant," they claim to have found the long sought ruins of the romantic city in the northern edge of the desert, Roba el Chali.

The discoverers state that twenty towers and temples are in good state of preservation and that they have taken photographs of them.—Transocean Kuo Min.

STATUS OF REICHSBANK

Berlin, March 9.

Seizing the opportunity offered by a general meeting of shareholders of the Reichsbank held on Friday, Schacht, dealt frankly a number of questions about the further status of the Reichsbank and finances of the Reich. Schacht said that the Reichsbank was making cautious use of its powers to buy securities conferred by recent legislation and insisted first and foremost on liquidity. "Whoever considers the energy and persistence with which the Reichsbank is endeavouring to create new field for the absorption of productive labour readily understands that the Reichsbank has not greater class than to keep the money and capital market equal to demands made on them for financing fluctuating economic needs, and at the same time maintaining itself capable of manoeuvring wherever necessary. Foreign countries are beginning to understand Germany's circumstances better and realise that the disappearance of Germany from the world market as buyers must result in having a very prejudicial influence on the raw materials market. Germany's foreign indebtedness to which the poverty of gold and foreign currencies is due is more than half the direct result of the Versailles Treaty and can only be reduced by a revival of world trade."—Transocean Kuo Min.

HITLER'S BOOK

Berlin, March 9.

The German publishers of Hitler's book "Mein Kampf" Franz Eher Press, issued on Friday night a statement regarding the recently pirated French edition of the much discussed biography of the leader of new Germany. The publishing house declares that the illegal Parisian edition of the book has been accorded approval neither by it or by the author, and that despite the French authorities assisting in every way in furthering the claims of justice against the pirates, a thorough investigation so far has failed to bring the guilty publishing concern to light. The Eher Press contradicts claims set forth in the foreword of the unauthorised edition that the translation is literally exact, and contend that the falsifications actually begin on the second page. The publishing house announces that the steps have already been begun to secure violated rights in meeting with complete success since they are being accorded the full co-operation of recognition of the French authorities.—Transocean Kuo Min.

GERMAN UNEMPLOYMENT

Berlin, March 9.

German unemployment figures have fallen to the lowest figure since 1931 according to official returns published on Friday revealing that the number of unemployed has decreased in February by roughly 400,000 to a total of 3,371,000 which is 341,000 below the lowest level recorded during the first year of Hitler's Government's successful campaign against unemployment. Thus not only the usual setback suffered during the winter months has been compensated for but an auspicious beginning has been made for this year's campaign which is expected to put an end to unemployment in Germany. The improvement is chiefly due to the encouragement of building enterprises and the general upward movement of German industries.—Transocean Kuo Min.

CONCENTRATION CAMPS

London, March 9.

The Press devotes considerable space to communications made by one of the leading officials of the Prussian State Secret, Police, Dr. Diehl, to foreign Pressmen in Berlin, and in which it is stressed that the concentration camps in Germany would probably disappear within the next few years. The papers underline Diehl's statement that a total of 9,000 political offenders are at present interned in German concentration camps, a number which is in sharp contrast with figures circulated by the Foreign Press.—Transocean Kuo Min.

HAPSBURGS OPPOSED

Paris, March 9.

That the return of the Hapsburgs to Vienna may lead to serious international complications and even war is intimated by Czechoslovakia's foreign minister Benes who in an interview published by the Petit Parisien predicts that at the moment of the Hapsburg re-entrance to the Austrian capital the Czech, Yugoslavian, and Rumanian ministers in Vienna would be recalled. Benes added that the Little Entente would oppose the Hapsburg restoration at all costs and would rather put up with any other eventuality than the return of the former Austro-Hungarian ruling house which in his opinion would signify the beginning of intrigue and secret negotiations aiming at the revision of the peace treaties. Czechoslovakia is determined to prevent this under all circumstances said Benes, whose utterances are generally interpreted to mean that the Entente would not even shrink from resorting to force.—Transocean Kuo Min.

STANDARD LEASES

Householders
Pleased

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Berlin, March 10.

Householders in Germany were pleased to receive the news this morning that the Reichs Minister of Justice has decreed that all existing leases will be replaced by one standard form of contract, sweeping away once and for all the many unreasonable conditions which landlords have been accustomed to impose at a time, when owing to the scarcity of dwelling houses, tenants have been forced to agree to anything the landlord cared to exact. For instance, a formidable printed document was placed by the landlord before the tenant which usually contained a clause making the tenant responsible for every form of damage which a house or flat might suffer, even if burnt to the ground by being struck by lightning. From now onwards the tenant can only be made responsible for damage that arises from his own neglect.—Transocean Kuo Min.

TRANS-ATLANTIC TRAVEL

N.D.L. Innovation

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 11, 4.30 a.m.)

Bremen, March 10.

Arrangements have just been completed whereby passengers' comfort on trans-Atlantic travel will be considerably enhanced. The North German Lloyd announced that as from April 14 their fast liners "Bremen" and "Europa" will go right up to the wharf at Chebourg instead of lying in mid-stream as before. At the same time the French train service will be carrying passengers to the steamers' side. By this it means that embarkation will be more agreeable both in Bremen and Southampton.—Transocean Kuo Min.

LA SALLE COLLEGE

Annual Athletic
Meeting

J. Alves won the Victor Ludorum at the third annual athletic meeting of La Salle College, Kowloon on Saturday. Over 180 competitors took part in the thirty odd events, and some good finishes were seen as some of the athletes were prominent in local sports.

Some good times were established in the flat racing and the students gave a good indication of the challenge which they will offer in the forthcoming Inter-School Sports in April.

C. Rozario won the Junior Championship, and Jerry Gosano the Midget honour.

The Right Rev. Bishop Valitor presented the prizes, and in asking him to do so, the Brother Director, Brother Almar, said that His Lordship not only took a spiritual interest in the children but also in their physical welfare.

He was glad to note that the students had made full use of the facilities which the school offered in its extensive playgrounds and congratulated the successful competitors, and offered sincere thanks to all those who had contributed towards the awards.

$9,500,000 FOR "NO. 534"

Treasury Aid For New Company

(Special Air-Mail Service)

The financial arrangements are, briefly, as follows:
Completion of No. 534.—The Treasury is to advance £3,000,000 for the completion of the unfinished Cunard, No. 534, £1,500,000 for working capital, and up to £5,000,000 for the building of an additional liner or liners.

This understanding is given in an agreement between the Treasury, the Cunard Steamship Company, and the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company (The White Star Line) for the merging of the North Atlantic fleets and assets of the two companies into a new company.

The text of the agreement, dated Dec. 30, 1933, was presented to Parliament yesterday. It is expected that the necessary financial resolution will be introduced in the House of Commons next week, and that work on No. 534—suspended at the end of 1931—will be resumed next month.

It is hoped that the liner will be ready for launching by October or November. The decision will provide work for between 1,000 and 1,500 men directly, and for 9,000 or 10,000 indirectly.

Must Remain British.
The new company is to be known as Cunard-White Star Ltd. A principle of the agreement is that "it is to be and remain under British control." Provisions to secure this are to be incorporated in the articles of association. The new company's assets will include: North Atlantic goodwill of both companies, together with the use of Cunard and "White Star" names and flags.

The unfinished liner, No. 534; By agreement with John Brown and Co., Clydebank, the shipbuilders, the contract for the unfinished liner; and North Atlantic fleets of both companies, comprising:

Calgaric	16,063

The board of the new company is to consist of ten members, including the chairman—six nominated by the White Star Company.

The two companies will be deemed to have carried on their North Atlantic business on behalf of the new company as from Jan. 1, 1934.

No. 534 is the first of two liners of great speed and size which the Cunard Company decided on in 1928. Work was not begun on her, however, until August, 1930. On Dec. 10, 1931, it was announced that her construction had been suspended owing to "the impact of the national crisis."

The liner will be of 73,000 gross tons weight, 1,018 ft long, and 112 ft broad. Her engines will be of 180,000 h.p., and her speed is estimated at over 30 knots.
